Russians Inflict Heavy Losses on Retreating Nazis On Central Front

Several Armored Salients Wiped Out and Tank Corps Is Beaten Back in Furious Fighting

By HENRY C. CASSIDY

MOSCOW, Friday, Sept. 12 (AP)—Red soldiers forcing ahead through the center of the German lines at a reported rate of seven to ten miles daily, today claimed to have inflicted heavy losses on the forty-seventh German tank corps, wiping out several armored salients.

The Russians employed the Germans' own tactics against the invaders, it was reported, closing in with a pincer movement around tank wedges, cutting them off from the infantry and destroying them unit by unit.

In a single encounter, the Russians said, a Red army tank unit destroyed seventy-nine tanks, thirty-two guns, 2,500 officers and men and routed the staffs of two regiments. The successes in the center were reported as Soviet defenders of Leningrad jabbed back at the Germans in a series of counter-attacks and Red airmen and German dive-bombers engaged in constant day and night air battles on the fringes of Russia's second city.

To the south, in the heavy fighting for the Ukraine capital, Kiev, the Germans were said to have lost 30,000 dead and wounded in 50 days. The counter-attacks of Marshal Semyon Timoshenko's western armies were reported spreading.

Germans in Retreat

A dispatch to Red Star, the army newspaper, said the seven-to-ten-mile daily pace was being maintained in the pursuit of the Germans toward Smolensk.

The increasingly strenuous Red army push was said to have forced the Germans to react in sectors where they had dug in, apparently intending to hold the center while attacking Leningrad, Kiev and Odessa on the flanks.

Dispatches said the counter-drive had thrown the Germans back as much as twelve miles in twenty-four hours at some points.

The Russians claimed that railway connections with Leningrad still were unbroken and said there was no confirmation of the reported German capture of Schlusselburg east of that city on Lake Ladoga.

In the far north the Russians re-

Tax Exemptions To Be Reduced, Committee Says

Senate and House Group Agrees to Treasury Proposals

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11 (AP)—A joint Senate-House committee was agreed tonight that income tax exemptions should be reduced from $1,000 to $1,500 for married persons and from $800 to $750 for single persons.

The treasury estimated this would yield an additional $303,000,000 annually and bring 4,911,000 additional persons under the income tax structure.

The committee finished adjusting differences between the Senate and House revenue measures, but Chairman Doughton (D-NC) of the Finance Ways and Means committee said the agreement would not be made public until Monday, when it will be presented to the House.

One informant reported, however, that the lower exemptions had been approved. He said the total of the compromise measure probably would be slightly in excess of the $3,583,000,000 Senate total.

That would indicate that the conference group had reinstated one or more House-approved levies which were knocked out by the Senate. These levies included taxes on soft drinks, radio stations and billboards.

Jap Government Seeks To Control Radical Groups

Whole Question of War or Peace Now Being Reviewed

By GLENN BARR

NEW YORK, Sept. 11 (AP)—The Japanese government, faced with the necessity of making decisions that may fix the empire's course for a generation, apparently moved energetically today to place the army under control and prevent military or other terrorist violence that might deflect it from its chosen path.

Japan has given indications of a willingness to review drastically the whole question of war or peace in the Pacific. Sweeping changes of policy may be necessary. Profoundly shaken by the course of the European war and by the rising power of the United States and Britain in the Pacific, the Japanese are trying to come to terms with the United States. For the past decade one major obstacle to an American accord with Japan has been a profound mistrust of the ability of any Tokyo government to fulfill any pledges opposed by the military.

There was established in Tokyo today a new National Defense Headquarters under direct command of Emperor Hirohito. It is headed by General Otozo Yamada, inspector general of military education, 60-year-old veteran of the Russo-Japanese and China wars and a leader of the conservative wing of the army. The new organ will control all the land and air forces in Japan proper, Korea, Formosa and Sakhalin.

Army Not Under Control

Circumstances of its establishment suggest strongly that its purpose is not so much to deal with the dangers of foreign invasion as to keep the armed forces in the homeland under control. Tokyo dispatches interpret it as a move to check military domination of imperial policy and establish safeguards against outbreaks of military dissatisfaction with the future course of events.

If that is the purpose and if the action is effective the Tokyo government will have taken an important step in the direction of stability in the Pacific. For the last decade the power of the army, especially its "radical" element, in the form of intimidation, threats or actual violence, has hamstrung the few efforts of the civilian government to steer a moderate course.

If the government of Prince Fumimaro Konohe is to regain freedom to direct the empire's destinies, measures first must be taken to end this army domination and the terrorist activities of the "patriotic" civilian organizations, such as the notorious Black Dragon Society, which support it.

Russian Situation Important

Tokyo dispatches leave unanswered the question of the attitude of the army of nearly 1,000,000 men in China and the powerful force being concentrated in Manchukuo against Soviet Siberia under command of the Kwantung army. But the very magnitude of the military tasks confronting them tends to lessen their influence at home; the government will have made a good

Senators Refuse To See Films of War 'Propaganda'

Decline Willkie's Invitation To "See Pictures, Discontinue Bunk"

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11 (AP)—Senators investigating charges of war propaganda in the film industry refused today to interrupt testimony and see the pictures in question. Senator McFarland (D-Ariz.), saying the interstate commerce subcommittee was "wasting a lot of time," urged a showing of the films because "the best evidence is the pictures themselves."

"Let's see the pictures and discontinue the bunk," added Wendell Willkie, the industry's counsel, in a statement to reporters.

But the committee rejected the proposal, Chairman Clark (D-Ida.) saying it would be impossible to see all the pictures mentioned, in the charges by Senator Clark (D-Mo.) and Nye (R-ND).

The request was made by McFarland when John T. Flynn, newspaper and magazine writer, asserted that a small group of men controlling the moving picture business was attempting to involve the United States in war.

Flynn contended: "First, that there is a monopoly; second, that the monopoly exercises the most rigid censorship on the moving pictures in its own interests; third, that it has banned not only pictures affecting millions, but pictures based on political themes, and that at this very moment this hated censorship is being exercised to suppress one side of this debate affecting the lives and fortunes of 130,000,000 Americans."

"I charge that the moving picture industry is using the screen in a concerted effort to make propaganda for the involvement of the United States in this war."

Flynn said that he was opposed to Hitler but was "more against Fascism than I am against Hitler" because "I see in Hitler merely an exorcism thrown up by the economic and social chaos of Europe."

He told the committee he said "in Hollywood and its monopoly of a great instrument of culture, something very closely resembling that kind of thinking which I understand as Fascism."

Willkie, counsel for the movie industry, asserted that in Flynn's testimony "the old monopoly humbug is dragged out again to divert attention momentarily from the real object of the investigation—the sabotage of the country's foreign policy."

Army Prisoner And Guard Flee In Stolen Car

General Alarm Sent Out for Two Privates Missing from Camp

CARLISLE, Pa., Sept. 11 (AP)—An army prisoner and his guard fled from the Carlisle barracks today in a stolen automobile. Private C. W. Lutton of the state motor police said tonight.

Lutton identified the men as Private Frederick W. Dengler, the guard, and Private Preston L. Hancock, of Willard, Md. He said the car belonged to P. M. McCarthy of Kington, Pa.

At Harrisburg, state police headquarters broadcast an alarm over a statewide network and said that Hancock was "considered dangerous by his superior officers."

A 12-gauge riot gun was missing with the men, police said. Dengler was dressed in an army uniform and Hancock in blue dungarees. Both men, officers said, are about five feet nine inches tall and weigh between 150 and 160 pounds.

Army authorities announced that Hancock is from Willard, Md., and Dengler from New Castle, Pa. Clothing belonging to Dengler and papers belonging to Hancock are both missing, headquarters said.

Col. E. E. Hume said that Hancock had been court-martialed and was considered a "general prisoner." Details of charges against him were not immediately available.

President Orders Attacks on Axis Submarines, Raiders or Aircraft if Found in American Defense Area

U. S. AIRMEN TO TOUR BRITISH WAR FRONTS

With a giant bomber in the background, Maj. Gen. George Brett (left), chief of the U. S. Army Air Corps, and Col. Caleb V. Haynes, noted army pilot, study routes to the British war fronts before taking off from Puerto Rico. Accompanied by staff experts, they will tour Africa, Near East, Mediterranean and Atlantic battle zones to study British aviation needs. Note U. S. flag painted on plane.

Defensive Area Not Defined in Roosevelt Talk

But President Is Said To Mean Waters Near U. S. Outposts

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11 (AP)—President Roosevelt, warning tonight that Axis vessels entering American defensive waters did so at their own peril, gave no definition of those waters.

He made entirely clear, however, that waters about all American Atlantic outposts were so considered.

It was generally presumed that defensive waters included—as a minimum—the vast Atlantic stretch from Iceland to the South American coast now being patrolled by American craft.

The presidential statement recalled to some Mr. Roosevelt's publicly-expressed attitude toward what is the Western Hemisphere.

At press conferences and in public addresses, the chief executive has left no doubt that he considers it futile to attempt to mark off a geographical line and to say that to cross it is an attack on this hemisphere.

Thus, he has made clear that assembly of a German force at Dakar on the African coast, or any point useful as a springboard for attack, could only be regarded as

Lindbergh Charges Jews, British And Roosevelt Want U. S. in War

Declares "War Agitators" Have Planned a Step-by-Step To Involve This Nation in Conflict

DES MOINES, Ia., Sept. 11 (AP)—Charles A. Lindbergh charged tonight "the three most important groups which have been pressing this country toward war are the British, the Jewish and the Roosevelt administration."

The famous flier, in an address prepared for an American First rally here which earlier heard the president by radio, declared these groups and other "war agitators" planned a step-by-step campaign to put the United States into the conflict.

"They planned, first, to prepare the United States for foreign war under the guise of American defense; second, to involve us in the war, step by step, without our realization; third, to create a series of incidents which would force us into the actual conflict," he said.

Sees More "Incidents"

"Only the creation of sufficient 'incidents' yet remains; and you see the first of these already taking place, according to plan—a plan that was never laid before the American people for their approval."

Termining England's position "desperate," Lindbergh asserted: "Her population is not large enough and her armies are not strong enough to invade the continent of Europe and win the war she declared against Germany. Her geographical position is such that she cannot win the war by aviation."

Sky Battleship Is Unveiled by Martin Company

Capable of Flying To Europe and Back with Load of Bombs

By JOHN F. CHANDLER

BALTIMORE, Sept. 11 (AP)—The United States navy today unveiled its huge new winged battleship, claimed by its builder, the Glenn L. Martin Company, to be the largest flying vessel ever constructed and capable of roving to Europe and back non-stop.

Strict naval secrecy still cloaks the aerial giant, with such statistical data as speed, crew complement, bomb load, and other vital information unknown outside official circles.

Gross Weight 140,000 Pounds

But, it was disclosed during initial statistical wing load tests before critical navy inspectors, that the plane's normal gross weight is 140,000 pounds with wingspread of 200 feet. It is powered with four 2,000-horsepower Wright Duplex Cyclone engines, and it's gas tanks hold "in excess of 10,000 gallons" the tanks were loaded with water for the test.

"It is a long-range patrol bomber," said J. T. Hartson, Martin executive vice-president, "capable of flying across the Atlantic and back again without a stop, or of patrolling vast areas of sea at high speed, able to base anywhere, ready to hurl tons of bombs on enemy ships or bases."

Armament Details Secret

Armament details also are secret, although there are six formidable power-driving gun turrets protruding from the all-metal, 117-foot two-deck hull.

France, Germany and Spain Work Out Plans to Defend West Africa

(By The Associated Press)

France, Germany and Spain have worked out elaborate joint plans to defend West Africa, according to information reaching the Associated Press in New York today.

Belief that the United States and Great Britain some day will try to seize bases in the strategic French, Spanish and Portuguese possessions across the South Atlantic has brought the three powers into virtual alliances, it is stated.

Three-way staff talks started months ago are said to have reached such a point that a permanent joint staff has been set up at Melilla, Spanish Morocco.

Steadily, German-produced arms are flowing down to Casablanca in

Says U. S. Warships Will Also Protect Vessels of Allies on the High Seas

Calls German Submarines "the Rattlesnakes of the Atlantic" and Declares "the Time for Active Defense Is Now"; Speech Taken to Indicate President Plans Convoys

Editor's Note — Complete text of President Roosevelt's speech is published on page 18.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11 (AP)—President Roosevelt firmly warned the Axis tonight that "no matter what it takes, no matter what it costs," German and Italian warships will be sunk on sight if they enter areas vital to American defense.

At the same time, delivering a world-wide address in reply to recent attacks on American shipping, the chief executive offered the protection of the United States navy to any merchant vessel "of any flag" plying those waters. And, he asserted:

"No act of violence or intimidation will keep us from maintaining intact two bulwarks of defense: First our line of supply of material to the enemies of Hitler, and, second, the freedom of our shipping on the high seas."

The president, in solemn and earnest mood, spoke from the diplomatic reception room on the ground floor of the White House. Mrs. Roosevelt was with him, and a few aides.

He spoke slowly, clearly and quietly, raising his voice only occasionally to emphasize such phrases as, when striking at foes of his foreign policy, he said that despite "what any American obstructionist organization may prefer to believe," the German submarine struck first in its skirmish last week with the destroyer Greer.

SEEKS NO SHOOTING

And, he chose to emphasize a statement that "we have sought no shooting war with Hitler," and "do not seek it now," but:

"Neither do we want peace so much, that we are willing to pay for it by permitting him to attack our naval and merchant ships while they are on legitimate business."

Stephen Early, presidential secretary, had said earlier in the day that the speech would leave no questions unanswered. One, however, did remain. That was a definition of what areas of the sea were considered vital to American defense.

Obviously they were intended to include the North Atlantic as far as the American outpost in Iceland, and a little beyond. How much beyond was the question. Obviously, too, they would include the areas of approach to the nation's outposts in Bermuda, in the Caribbean and in the Panama Canal area.

Opponents See War Nearer

Congressional opponents of the president's policy were quick to declare that the country had gone a step nearer full-fledged war.

"Clearly," said Senator Nye (R-ND) "we are going to have convoys irrespective of law and irrespective of President Roosevelt's own promises and assurances. This means definitely that we are nearer to a shooting war by presidential proclamation of war" and Senator Gillette (D-Iowa) "a declaration of war so far as it can be made by the executive branch alone."

But Chairman Connally (D-Tex.) of the Senate Foreign Relations committee said it was "an eloquent and clear exposition of the historical and traditional policy of the United States with regard to freedom of the sea." Majority Leader Barkley (D-Ky.) said "he has laid before the American people the problem that faces them and the method by which he proposes to deal with it. In my opinion, he could pursue no other course."

Mr. Roosevelt himself called his action purely a defensive one.

"We have not sought a shooting war with Hitler," the president said in a world-wide address. "But neither do we want peace so much

RECOUNTS ATTACKS

Before making this historic announcement, the chief executive recounted, one after another, attacks upon American ships which led to his statement of policy—the U. S. S. Greer, the Robin Moor, the Steel Seafarer, the Sessa, and to these he added an incident at sea which had not hitherto been known to the public.

"In July 1941," he said, "an American battleship in North American waters was followed by a submarine which for a long time sought

Churchill Called Liar, Blackguard In Parliament

But William Gallacher, Communist Member Later Apologizes

LONDON, Sept. 11 (AP)—Winston Churchill, defending one of his ministers from charges of hostility towards Britain's Russian allies, was called a blackguard and a liar today by William Gallacher, the only Communist member of Parliament, who later apologized to both the prime minister and the House.

The brief and ugly storm arose over allegations made recently by Jack Tanner, a labor leader, that Col. J. T. C. Moore-Brabazon, the minister for aircraft production, had expressed a hope that the German and Soviet armies would exterminate each other. It brought an incidental and official disclosure that hundreds of British fighting planes already are being sent to Russia by Moore-Brabazon's ministry.

Unionists Show Anger

"Very deep and bitter feeling" existed amongst trades unionists over the colonel's alleged remark concerning Russia, Gallacher said at the outset.

He went on then to demand that Churchill "clear out of this government anyone who is not 100 per cent for cooperation with Russia."

"I do not think," Churchill retorted coldly, "that I should be prepared to receive guidance in policy or conduct from an honorable gentleman who, it is notorious, has to change his opinions whenever he is ordered to by a body outside this country."

Shouting a demand for withdrawal of this "insulting remark," Gallacher cried out:

"Foul and Dirty Lie"

"I have never at any time taken orders from anyone outside this country . . . it is a dirty, cowardly, rotten attack on the part of the prime minister. It is the action of a blackguard. It is a foul and dirty lie."

Later Gallacher returned repentantly to address the speaker.

"After very deep reflection about what occurred this morning I want to apologize to you, sir, and to the House for the offensive words I used when I put to you my point of order, and I want to make a complete withdrawal of the offensive remarks made and directed towards the prime minister."

Kiwanis Names Delegates To District Convention

The Kiwanis club yesterday selected Lloyd Rawlings and Joseph W. Young as delegates, along with its president, Harvey H. Weiss, to the annual convention of the Capital district of Kiwanis International, to be held in Washington, October 9, 10 and 11.

J. W. Holmes and William J. Edwards were named alternates.

have been published. But few outside high official circles know the extent to which the three powers have carried their military collaboration.

Germany, it is asserted, would like to extend the South Atlantic line of defense to little Portugal's Atlantic possessions—the Azores, Madeira and Cape Verde.

Portugal Careful

Portugal, however, careful of her neutrality, turned down an invitation to participate in joint staff talks.

Those talks, it is learned here, began in June, or before. In early July, General von Rinteln, Hitler's African ace, General Nogues, governor general of French Morocco, and one of Spain's generals met at Melilla. Out of that meeting grew the permanent tri-power staff.

Following is the gist of the plan as outlined by the Associated Press informants:

Germany will furnish material to fill out France's and Spain's war left-overs, give technical advice and assign needed technicians and specialists, including aviators; France will contribute the sizeable remnant of her once-potent navy, planes, officers and troops, and Spain's big Moroccan army will be the backbone of manpower, to be thrown into action if needed.

Sky Battleship

Interior arrangement was not disclosed, but Martin engineers said the giant hull "clearly is larger than any airplane body or fuselage in the world, with many compartments in its two decks." Hartson said that hydraulic flying equipment was installed because it is beyond the strength of man to operate controls manually.

The "130" as it is called by Martin officials—the "XPB2M-1" by the navy—is intended for high-altitude operation far above effective range of anti-aircraft fire.

Davies Continues To Insist East Faces Gasoline Shortage

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11 (AP)—Bluntly disputing a conclusion of a senate committee that there is no gasoline shortage in the east, the Defense Petroleum Coordinator's Office asserted today that a shortage does exist and that conservation measures must continue.

Ralph K. Davies, acting coordinator in the absence of Secretary of the Interior Ickes on vacation, said in a statement:

"Our appraisal of the present and future stock deficiency remains—as previously reported—and the necessity for public cooperation continues. To the coordinator's office, the admittedly low conditions of petroleum stocks on the east coast continues to mean shortage and the necessity for appropriate action."

The Senate committee in a report earlier in the day had expressed opinion there was no existing shortage and had recommended that restriction on deliveries of gasoline to filling stations be lifted.

By order of the Petroleum Coordinator's Office, deliveries to retail outlets in the last five weeks have been held ten per cent below July deliveries.

In another conservation move, the office also has asked that filling stations close between 7 p. m. and 7 a. m. The five-man Senate group expressed no opinion regarding this curfew.

The Senate group expressed the opinion that "in the handling of the petroleum problem unnecessary alarm was created."

"We are of the opinion that this was caused by over-enthusiasm on the part of those charged with the direction of the petroleum situation," their report added.

The Senate group said there appeared to be no danger of a lack of fuel for heating homes or operating defense industries; and that "with proper conservation motorists should find it possible to acquire the gasoline and oil products which they need."

"Paradoxical as it sounds, the shortage as we see it, is a shortage of surplus—and not a shortage of products, or a lack of facilities to transport them," Senator Maloney (D-Conn.), chairman of the committee, informed the Senate in what he described as a preliminary report.

State University Far from Opulent, Says Its Dean

College Park Institution Needs More Funds, Kiwanians Are Told

The University of Maryland, far from being opulent as it is sometimes represented, is in need of more funds, particularly for its recently organized College of Commerce, Cumberland Kiwanians were told yesterday.

The speaker at the club's weekly luncheon-meeting at the Port Cumberland hotel was Dr. W. MacKenzie Stevens, dean of the College of Commerce.

After reviewing the founding of the commerce school a few years ago and relating the obstacles which had to be overcome, Dr. Stevens challenged statements that the operating cost of the university is excessive and quoted figures to prove his point.

Includes Other Income

The college dean said that $4,500,000 was recently cited as the annual cost of the university. In the first place, he declared, that amount represents the budget for two years, and in the second place, it includes other income besides the amount appropriated by the state.

Another discrepancy in this figure noted by Dr. Stevens was that it covers a great many other activities of the university besides its formal educational departments at College Park and elsewhere. The amount represents, among other things, expenses of the Extension Service, he said.

The actual annual cost of the university's educational departments is in the neighborhood of $300,000, he stated, and that includes the colored college at Princess Anne.

As a matter of fact, Dr. Stevens went on, Maryland, although one of the wealthiest states in the union, pays less per capita for its state university than any other state, with the exception of two. The per capita cost of the University of Maryland is only twenty-six cents, he said.

Salaries Are Low

Turning to the College of Commerce, he hailed the quality of its courses and its faculty as high, but branded its appropriations and equipment as "inadequate" and its salaries "low."

Dr. Stevens urged that members of the Kiwanis club and other business men of Cumberland acquaint themselves with the facts concerning their state university. He suggested that they take particular interest in the College of Commerce and added that the college will be glad to be of any service it can to them.

The speaker concluded with a suggestion that the members and their friends co-operate in sending Maryland youths to the state university, extending them assistance in any way possible.

29th Division Leaves Camp Meade Today

PORT GEORGE G. MEADE, Md., Sept. 11 (AP)—Mass evacuation of Port Meade by the Twenty-Ninth division will begin tomorrow morning when the Eighty-Eighth brigade will be transported to the A. P. Hill military reservation in Caroline County, Va.

This will be the first movement of a three-day transportation plan which will end Monday when the last troops of the division will arrive in the Caroline county training area for two weeks of maneuvers preparatory to engaging in mass war games of the army this fall in North Carolina.

The truck convoys carrying the Eighty-Eighth brigade, composed of the One-Hundred and sixteenth and One-Hundred and Seventy-Sixth Virginia Infantry regiments and the One-Hundred and Eleventh field artillery, will extend for nearly 100 miles and number approximately 900 vehicles.

A last-minute revision of earlier plans routed the convoy from Washington when it was learned that Pennsylvania's Twenty-Eighth division, homeward bound from the same training area, would pass through Washington, Saturday.

Tawes Predicts State's Surplus Will Set Record

Believes It Will Be about $8,350,000 by Sept. 30

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 11 (AP)—State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes predicted today that Maryland's general fund surplus would hit an all-time high of approximately $8,350,000 at Sept. 30 the end of the current fiscal year.

The previous record was established at the end of the last fiscal year when excess revenues totaled approximately $6,155,000.

Tawes said increased revenues from the income alcoholic beverage and automobile titling taxes and reversions of state departments were responsible for showing the general fund surplus to unprecedented heights. At the end of July, the surplus was over the $7,000,000 mark.

Surplus Growing

The state comptroller said if revenues kept on their present trend in the next fiscal year, the surplus would soar to approximately $8,500,000 at Sept. 30, 1942.

If the surplus does hit the $8,500,000 figure at the end of the fiscal year 1942, the state will have $6,300,000 more in the treasury than was estimated when the budget for 1942 was adopted by the recent legislature.

State fiscal experts had anticipated a general fund surplus of only $2,200,000 at the end of the fiscal year 1942, as compared to the predicted $8,500,000.

Receipts Above Goal

When the legislature reduced the income tax, it was estimated that the levy would produce only $6,500,000. But when the third installment was paid Monday, the receipts will exceed the $6,500,000 goal, Tawes said. He added that after the last installment is paid Dec. 15, the total receipts would hit $7,200,000.

The 1941 legislature passed a law empowering the Board of Public Works, at its discretion, to use all surplus funds over the $2,000,000 mark at Sept. 30, 1942 to further reduce the state real estate tax. A reduction in the real estate tax, ordered by the last General Assembly, goes into effect Oct. 1.

Highlights of Roosevelt's Warning Speech to Belligerent Axis Powers

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11 (AP)—Here are some of the salient sentences from President Roosevelt's address tonight:

In spite of what Hitler's propaganda bureau has invented and in spite of what any American obstructionist organization may prefer to believe, I will tell you the blunt fact that the German submarine fired first upon this American destroyer (the Greer) without warning, and with deliberate intent to sink her.

This was piracy—legally and morally. It was not the first nor the last act of piracy which the Nazi government has committed against the American flag in this war. Attack has followed attack.

It is the Nazi design to abolish the freedom of the seas . . . for with control of the seas in their own hands the way can become clear for their next step—domination of the United States and the Western Hemisphere by force.

It must be explained again and again to people who like to think of the United States Navy as invincible that this can be true only if the 'British Navy survives. That is simple arithmetic.

It is time for all Americans of all the Americas to stop being deluded by the romantic notion that the Americas can go on living happily and peacefully

Russia Charges Bulgaria Helps Two Axis Powers

Red Reprisals Will Be Swift, Molotov Says in Statement

MOSCOW, Sept. 11 (AP)—Soviet Russia formally accused Bulgaria tonight of acting as a full-scale base for German-Italian land, sea and air attacks on the Soviet union and strongly intimated that Red reprisals would be swift and stern.

Bulgaria herself is preparing to participate in the attacks Soviet Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov declared in a long statement handed to the Bulgarian minister in Moscow and broadcast on the Moscow radio.

The Crimea the Caucasus and Odessa are the main objectives of the Axis forces concentrating in Bulgaria, Molotov charged.

Long before the German attack on Russia he said, Bulgaria had evinced lack of loyalty and friendship for Russia, her long-time friend, and had been warned repeatedly as far back as last January.

This was even before Bulgaria signed with the Axis in March, a step which caused Britain to sever relations with her.

Citing Bulgaria's role as a jumping-off place for German-Italian attacks on Yugoslavia and Greece last April, Molotov alleged a long list of more extensive acts against Russia including:

Concentration of German-Italian troops in Bulgaria; use of Bulgarian airdromes; preparation of Black Sea ports as bases for submarines and warships; use of Bulgarian railways to transport troops naval forces and materials for Germany; and use of a German-built bridge across the Danube river at Ruschuk, Bulgaria.

Hitler's Paper Flays Roosevelt As 'Warmonger'

Says President Is on Feverish Search for Further Friction

BERLIN, Sept. 11 (AP)—President Roosevelt's speech of tonight was anticipated by German commentators with bellicose denunciations of the president and by the declaration late today in a Red underscored headline in Adolf Hitler's own newspaper: "Warmonger Roosevelt Needs Provocation Corpses."

The article in the Voelkischer Beobachter added that the president was "on a feverish search for possibilities of further action."

Ordinarily the controlled press waits twenty-four hours to react to public utterances abroad, because it takes that long for the higher-ups to lay down the guiding lines but this time the unofficial German view was that the tone of Mr. Roosevelt's speech had been suggested in advance.

Defensive

an aggressive action against the Americas.

In the same way, many thought that the term defensive waters might prove, in practice, to be elastic and applicable to different waters as the necessity of time and circumstances might dictate.

Calls Halt on Hitler

"You seek to throw our children and our children's children into your forms of terrorism and slavery. You have attacked our own safety. You shall go no further."

Calling Nazi submarines "the rat-tlesnakes of the Atlantic," he said it was clear that the time had come when the Americas themselves must be defended, because if submarines and raiders can attack in distant waters "they can attack equally well within sight of our own shores."

If attacks without our own waters or in waters which could be used for further and greater attacks upon us are continued, he argued, they "will inevitably weaken American ability to repel Hitlerism."

There was no sense in "splitting hairs," Mr. Roosevelt said, about whether American resistance should begin after the fifth attack or the tenth or the twentieth.

"The time for active defense is now."

Nor, he continued, should there be hair-splitting on whether we should defend ourselves only "if the torpedo success in getting home," or passengers and crew are drowned.

"This is the time for prevention of attack," the President said, and then added:

Navy Will Shoot First

"In the waters which we deem necessary for our defense, American naval vessels and American planes will no longer wait until Axis submarines lurking under the water, or Axis raiders on the surface of the sea, strike their deadly blow—first."

From now on if German or Italian vessels of war enter the waters, the protection of which is necessary for American defense, they do so at their own peril."

Leningrad Burning, Nazis Claim In Scoffing at Red Statements

BERLIN, Sept. 11 (AP)—Scoffing at Russian claims of successful counter attacks on the central front, German military spokesmen tonight concentrated on besieged Leningrad, declaring that fires set by bombs and shells were raging in many sections of that old northern capital.

No general conflagration has yet been set, they said, in hopes Russians will "think it over" and decide to surrender the city before it is destroyed.

Pamphlets urging the citizens to make that decision were dropped today, along with bombs.

There was no intimation when this avowed policy would change. Germans stating, "the time of Leningrad's capture will be determined by Germany and by no one else."

Not Afraid of Winter

A military spokesman said the German army "does not fear winter," having made thorough preparations for that eventuality.

In any event, he said, it is safe to count on two months of good fighting weather in the north and more in the south, and "the most important decisions will fall before blizzards, hamper operations."

All along the front, offensive operations were declared to be proceeding successfully.

Replying to reports abroad of Russian successes in the Smolensk and Gomel regions in the center, the spokesman declared the fighting front was about seventy kilometers (43 1-2 miles) east of Smolensk, with Gomel even deeper behind the German lines.

Admit Russian Advance

Other German sources acknowledged that at one point a Russian tank thrust broke into the German lines, but said the Reds were repelled with loss of sixty-eight out of 100 tanks at one point and that 3,700 attackers were captured at another. The Russian counter-attacks were described as "bold," however.

In one village north of Kiev the Russians fought for each house, but were reported defeated, with 2,000 captured and sixty of their guns, ninety machine-guns and many motor vehicles seized.

to maneuver itself into a position of attack.

"The periscope of the submarine was clearly seen. No British or American submarines were within hundreds of miles of this spot at the time, so the nationality of the submarine is clear."

These incidents, taken collectively, the president said, could only be regarded as part of a general Nazi design "to abolish the freedom of the seas, and to acquire absolute control and domination of the seas for themselves."

U. S. Next on List

With that control in their hands, he said, the next step would be "domination of the United States and the Western Hemisphere by force," with no American vessel "free to carry on any peaceful commerce except by the condescending grace of this foreign and tyrannical power."

Although Mr. Roosevelt continued, some like to regard the United States Navy as invincible, this was true only so long as the British Navy survives. With Britain gone, Hitler would be able to far outstrip the United States in building ships.

"It is time for all Americans of all the Americas," he added, "to stop being deluded by the romantic notion that the Americas can do on living happily and peacefully in a Nazi-dominated world."

Then, he turned to the question of freedom of the seas, terming it a "basis and fundamental" policy for which generation after generation of Americans had battled.

"That has been our policy proved time and again, in all our history," he said.

Applies to All Oceans

"Our policy has applied from the immortal—and still applies—not merely to the Atlantic but to the Pacific and to all the other oceans as well."

"Unrestricted submarine warfare in 1941 constitutes a defiance—an act of aggression—against that historic American policy."

"It is now clear that Hitler has begun his campaign to control the seas by ruthless force and by wiping out every vestige of international law and humanity."

"His intention has been made clear. The American people can no longer have any illusions about it."

"We Americans are now face to face not with abstract theories but with cold ruthless facts."

"There has now come a time when you and I must see the cold inexorable necessity of saying to these inhuman, unrestrained seekers of world conquest and permanent world domination by the sword—

Russians Inflict

ported repulsing a German-Finnish attempt to cut the Leningrad-Murmansk railroad, and said fierce fighting continued in defense of Marmansk.

Naval pilots of the Baltic fleet were said to have joined the Leningrad air fights. Germans thus far have tried to raid Leningrad 123 times. The raids reached the city itself for the first time Tuesday.

Approaches to both Leningrad and Kiev were said to be carpeted with German dead. The early morning communique gave no new details of the battles beyond a statement that stubborn fighting continued along the entire front.

Reds Hold Initiative

Front line dispatches pictured Red troops as holding the initiative along a front of some 400 miles, from Gomel north to Yelnya and thence to Velikie Luki.

In the far north, the Russians reported repulsing a German-Finnish attempt to cut the Leningrad-Murmansk railroad.

Although the official communique Thursday said merely that stubborn fighting was continuing, this picture of the war was given in dispatches received during the day by the army newspaper Red Star and by Tass, the official news agency.

Central front—tanks which crossed river "N" yesterday and advanced six miles have pushed forward another twelve miles and captured ten towns. The Gomel, Yelnya and Smolensk counter-attacks continue.

A Red army attack against the village of Starina, on the west bank of the upper Dvina 135 miles northwest of Yelnya, has frustrated a German attempt to cross. Large forces concentrated at Starina and nearby Zapadnaya Dvina were forced to withdraw.

Kill Many Germans

Russians captured, killed and wounded 12,000 German officers and men, destroyed 340 tanks and armored cars and 140 cannon in fierce fighting at Velikie Luki, sixty miles northwest of Starina.

Leningrad—Russian defenders in five days of counter-attack closed in on the German-occupied village of "Y." The numerically superior Germans attempted a counterdrive with artillery and plane support but were repulsed.

Kiev—Russians working under the fire of German guns have surrounded Kiev with an unbroken series of fortifications, anti-tank obstacles, trenches and artillery emplacements. In fifty days of fighting at Kiev the Germans have lost 30,000 dead and wounded and hundreds of planes and tanks.

Odessa—a "considerable part" of the Rumanian force which General Ion Antonescu hurled against Odessa has been annihilated.

Northern front—Russians advancing in the area between Lake Ladoga and Lake Onega are driving German-Finnish troops back toward the Soviet-Finnish frontier. The Russians recaptured point "D" and destroyed an infantry battalion.

and planes will protect all merchant ships—not only American ships but ships of any flag—engaged in commerce in our defensive waters.

"They will protect them from submarines; they will protect them from surface raiders."

It was not "an act of war," he said, "when we decide to protect the seas which are vital to American defense," for "the aggression is not ours; ours is solely defense."

Direct Warning to Germany

There followed his direct warning to Germany and Italy that if their vessels of war enter areas of the sea which this country considers vital to its protection, those ships of war do so at their own risk.

"That is my obvious duty in this crisis," he said. "That is the clear right of this sovereign nation. That is the only step possible, if we would keep tight the wall of defense which we are pledged to maintain around this Western Hemisphere."

"I have no illusions about the gravity of this step. I have not taken it hurriedly or lightly. It is the result of months of constant thought and anxiety and prayer. In protection of your nation and mine it cannot be avoided."

"And with the inner strength that comes to a free people conscious of their duty and of the righteousness of what they do, they (the American people) will—with Divine help and guidance—stand their ground against this latest assault upon their democracy, their sovereignty and their freedom."

Does This Report "Get Your Goat"?

THERE IS an old slang expression about "getting one's goat," which has quite appropriate application to a situation of chagrin, embarrassment or similar discomfort, even resentment and anger.

Of course, if one's goat is got, one must have a goat for the getting; and that brings in the reason for this screed, which is a bulletin, second series, issued by the federal bureau of the census as part and parcel of its compilation of the Sixteenth census of the United States, having to do with Maryland agriculture, a copy of which has lately come to the editor's desk.

The bulletin contains a mass of figures about farm mortgages, taxes, labor facilities, livestock both living and slaughtered, and miscellaneous information about fruits, vegetables and minor crops. It is in a table about livestock in which information about goats is given, and the subject seems to have been regarded as important as these animals are played up in the heading. But, however that may be, the interesting information is revealed that, as of April 1, 1940, there were only seven goats and kids in all of Allegany county. Maybe some more kids have come along since then, but we shall have to stick to the date for purposes of comparison.

Now, seven goats are not many for a large and prosperous county like Allegany. The state had, on the date given, a total of 365, a number easy to remember as it represents the equivalent of one for each day in the year, hence the state need have no goatless days. Baltimore city had none. Garrett boasted twice the number of Allegany, or fourteen.

So, whose goats have been got hereabout? Well, within five years, according to the table, a total of eleven as on January 1, 1935, the county had a total of eighteen, including kids. Wherefore, only eleven persons in the county have, within five years, fallen into that state of embarrassment mentioned, according to the figures.

Well, where's the lesson of all this? Inasmuch as goats do not appear to play any extraordinary part in the farming activities of the county, perhaps as good a point as any that could be made is the manner in which statistics can be twisted around to suit almost any purpose. According to the foregoing, only eleven persons in the county came into the predicament of having somebody "get their goat" within five years; but another use of the statistics can show that to be all "wet." Let's see.

The Sixteenth census reported the total population of Allegany county at 86,973 (a growth of 7,875 in the decade). So, deducting the seven goats with which the county is credited (or debited according to the point of view), there is shown to have been 86,966 persons without goats, or presumably those whose goats have been got!

Wherefore, those of that class need not worry for lack of the company that misery traditionally loves. Yet even at that we are better off than Baltimore city. There no goats were reported and there were 859,100 inhabitants there last year. That's a whole of a lot of goats taken away, or "got."

One might go on and find other interesting phases of this goat and kid census, as, for instance, the disclosure that none of the seven goats was an Angora and that in no case was mohair or kid hair clipped. But further exploration might result in somebody's getting the writer's goat, wherefore the case will be hereby rested with the contented feeling that a duty has been duly done in informing Alleghenians about their goat industry.

Gasoline Confusion Worse Confounded

IF there is still anybody in the United States who needs to be convinced that "New Dealer" spells "bad administrator" he need only review the Saga of Harold and the Oil Shortage, or, Let's See Who Can Confuse the Public Most.

The story opens with the appointment of Ickes as oil-coordinator to administer the shortage of gasoline in the East. Immediately Harold sends forth a stream of warnings and exhortations to motorists. He demands a twenty per cent cut in consumption, then thirty per cent. He asks local arrest of motorists wasting gas. He says motorists are not paying any attention to him and that consumption is increasing. He announces that American tankers are being used to transport oil to Russia. He warns of compulsory rationing. Then he departs on a vacation.

Ickes's assistant, Ralph R. Davies, does his bit for confusion. He says that the supply of oil on hand will last only ten days. This rates huge scare headlines in the press. Soon it becomes apparent that there is never more than ten days supply of oil on hand, anyway. Assistant Davies decides that "sinister and planned" sabotage is behind the confusion over the shortage.

Davies says that railroads and others have been approached but no tank cars to relieve the shortage can be found in any quantity. Rear Admiral Emory S. Land manages to slip a word edgewise to the effect that he does not think much of the oil pipeline that is planned because it will take too much steel in its construction. He likes the idea of concrete barges, J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, says that there are enough tank cars to take care of the shortage. He says that Davies never asked him about tank cars.

Meanwhile, gasoline retailers have been allotted a sales-quota for September equaling eighty-five per cent of July sales. Everybody is angry and getting more confused all the time, but they hope Ickes will remain indefinitely on his vacation.

Most people finally develop a lurking suspicion that if the attention of Ickes and his incompetent friends could be diverted from the gas shortage, the shortage would soon take care of itself better than it is being "administered."

A Road Project That Seem To Be Lost

SEVERAL PAGES of publicity matter have been received from the office of the public relations director of the state roads commission in which, among other things given attention, Governor O'Connor is reported as expressing "extreme satisfaction" with the "full-speed operations" of the commission in "efforts to improve Maryland's roads to a point where they equal in every way the finest of any state."

This newspaper would not for a moment detract from the governor's satisfaction, nor disparage any of the efforts of the state roads commission, as that body has a lot on its hands. But people over in Western Maryland are naturally interested in how that satisfaction and that record comport with the operations of the commission in their section. Careful search of these handouts fail to disclose anything of the sort.

It is recalled that early this summer a delegation of Allegany county citizens went to Baltimore and obtained the assurance from the state roads commission offices that plans for improving the dangerous stretch of the main highway between this city and Frostburg had been decided upon and that, moreover, work would be started on it "within the next sixty days." That period of time has come and gone, but nobody has detected any start of work on this long-neglected project, nor ever heard anything more about it.

People of this section may well wonder why, in view of the statement made in the releases noted that "in all thirty-two projects are included in the $5,300,000 of state spending (for highways during the last four months) while $439,000 has been contracted for in eleven county projects, the most important of which is the Old Powder Factory road in Prince George's county, where the contract totals $136,000." Another sheet notes that "bids for $672,000 in additional highway work are now being awaited."

Where is the Cumberland-Frostburg project anyway?

Motorists, Watch Out For School Children

"SCHOOL" SIGNS on streets and highways once more assume definite safety significance with children flocking back to the classrooms, the Keystone Automobile Club declares in a bulletin asking motorists co-operation in accident prevention.

Motorists' responsibilities are increased by the return of children to school because more caution will be required in guarding against child accidents, Edward P. Curran, safety director of the club, says.

School "beginners," it is pointed out, do not have the benefit of safety instruction. Their safety depends largely upon the way in which vehicles are operated, not only in the vicinity of schools, but on all streets where children are walking on their way to and from the classrooms.

Free for several months from the restraints imposed by safety education in the classrooms, many children are likely to be less safety conscious than they are during the rest of the school term, it is asserted.

The club also impresses upon motor vehicle operators the importance of co-operating with the school safety patrols. The boys and girls who constitute these patrols are doing a splendid work in accident prevention. They are always on the alert to safeguard fellow pupils, but their efforts will be hampered without complete co-operation of motorists.

American oil is being shipped to Franco in Spain to keep him from breaking out on some sort of rampage. This trick is a good one, but frequently in the past it has backfired.

My Conquerable Soul

By MARSHALL MASLIN

There is a poem by a man named William E. Henley that is a favorite with many. Hundreds of thousands of young eulogists have recited it with appropriate gestures. And armies of men and women, tempted to despair, have taken consolation from its trumpet-like defiance. It contains that famous stanza:

"Out of the night that encompasseth me,
Black as the pit from pole to pole,
I thank whatever gods may be
For my unconquerable soul."

Those four lines have helped many a sad human being, given him heart again, given him strength to rise and go gallantly on. Because I know that is true I would not speak scornfully of them.

But is it my fault that Henley's verses have never lifted me out of any "black pit"? If that loud thankfulness for his "unconquerable soul" is never, for me, like the flying of an inspiring banner against the sky?

After all I do not think of my soul as unconquerable. Too often, I know, it has been conquered. So many small irritations, so many petty annoyances, have brought it low. Again and again I have been without hope, peevish and fretful, and even Henley's trumpet-song has been powerless to raise my falling spirit. . . . I know that my spirit is conquerable by little foes. But I know, also, that against the greater enemies it is UNconquerable. It's a strange thing, my soul—and your soul, too. In the bitterest moments it will find sweetness. In the blackest pit, it will shine strongly. Some small disappointment will send it reeling backwards. But in an hour of great grief or peril, it will tap some great reservoir of faith and courage and charge boldly ahead.

Thus it is that I do not ask the poet Henley's help. . . . I KNOW I do not need him. I know that strength will come to me when I need it most sorely. I know I shall have what courage life demands. I know that my soul is feeble when the demand is little, strong enough when the requirement is great. . . . And there's no man, no woman, who cannot say the same.

War Opponent Quip by British Not Too Smart

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

Calling our isolationists "peace mongers" is a funny little quip, all right, but it's doubtful that it was a very sound tick-tack in connection with an argument in favor of active American participation in the current war. The fact that an Englishman was the one who perpetrated it didn't improve the matter.

British minister of Information Brendan Bracken delivered the thrust, immediately following the recent twin speeches, in London, by Prime Minister Churchill and Canadian Premier Mackenzie King, appealing for all-out Yankee aid to John Bull.

These two having finished, Minister Bracken took occasion to broadcast an invitation to members of Uncle Sam's Congress to visit England and look over the situation. "We're anxious," he concluded, "for independent witnesses and critics, but not peace mongers."

Now, it tends to make Washington's interventionist statesmen sore to be referred to as "war mongers." Nobody likes to be represented as an out-and-out seeker for a fight. It's perfectly respectable, however, to advocate peace—if possible. And the isolationists insist that it IS possible, so far as the United States is concerned; they're FOR it, and not only admit it, but proclaim it vehemently.

So before Minister Bracken had fairly ended his remarks, the isolationist bloc on Capitol Hill sprang up as one man. "Hurray, we're peace mongers," they yelled.

The designation figures now in ordinary conversation. Senator Burton K. Wheeler and Bennett Champ Clark are a couple of avowed peace mongers. When they meet in the Capitol lobby, as an exchange of greetings, "Good morning, Peace Monger," says each to each.

The more or less interventionist element don't admit that they're war mongers, but the proclaimed peace mongers insist that they are and so address 'em face to face—"Good afternoon, Mr. War Monger. Howdy do?"

The advantage is all with the peace mongers, for they're thoroughly willing to be thus identified, whereas it makes a war monger extremely angry to be saluted to this effect. Yet he doesn't want to class as a peace monger, either.

If the interventionists would admit that they're war mongers, there virtually would exist two new parties in Congress—peace mongers and war mongers.

Many Seem For Peace

Just which would be in a majority it's hard to tell. The really noisy members of the peace mongering alignment are a rather small group, but if the two aggregations got down to a clean-cut vote, there probably would be a good many doubtful souls who'd prefer peace to war mongering.

Anyway, Minister Bracken's crack solidified the peace mongers, and, if anything, it rattled the interventionists, which certainly wasn't what he intended to do.

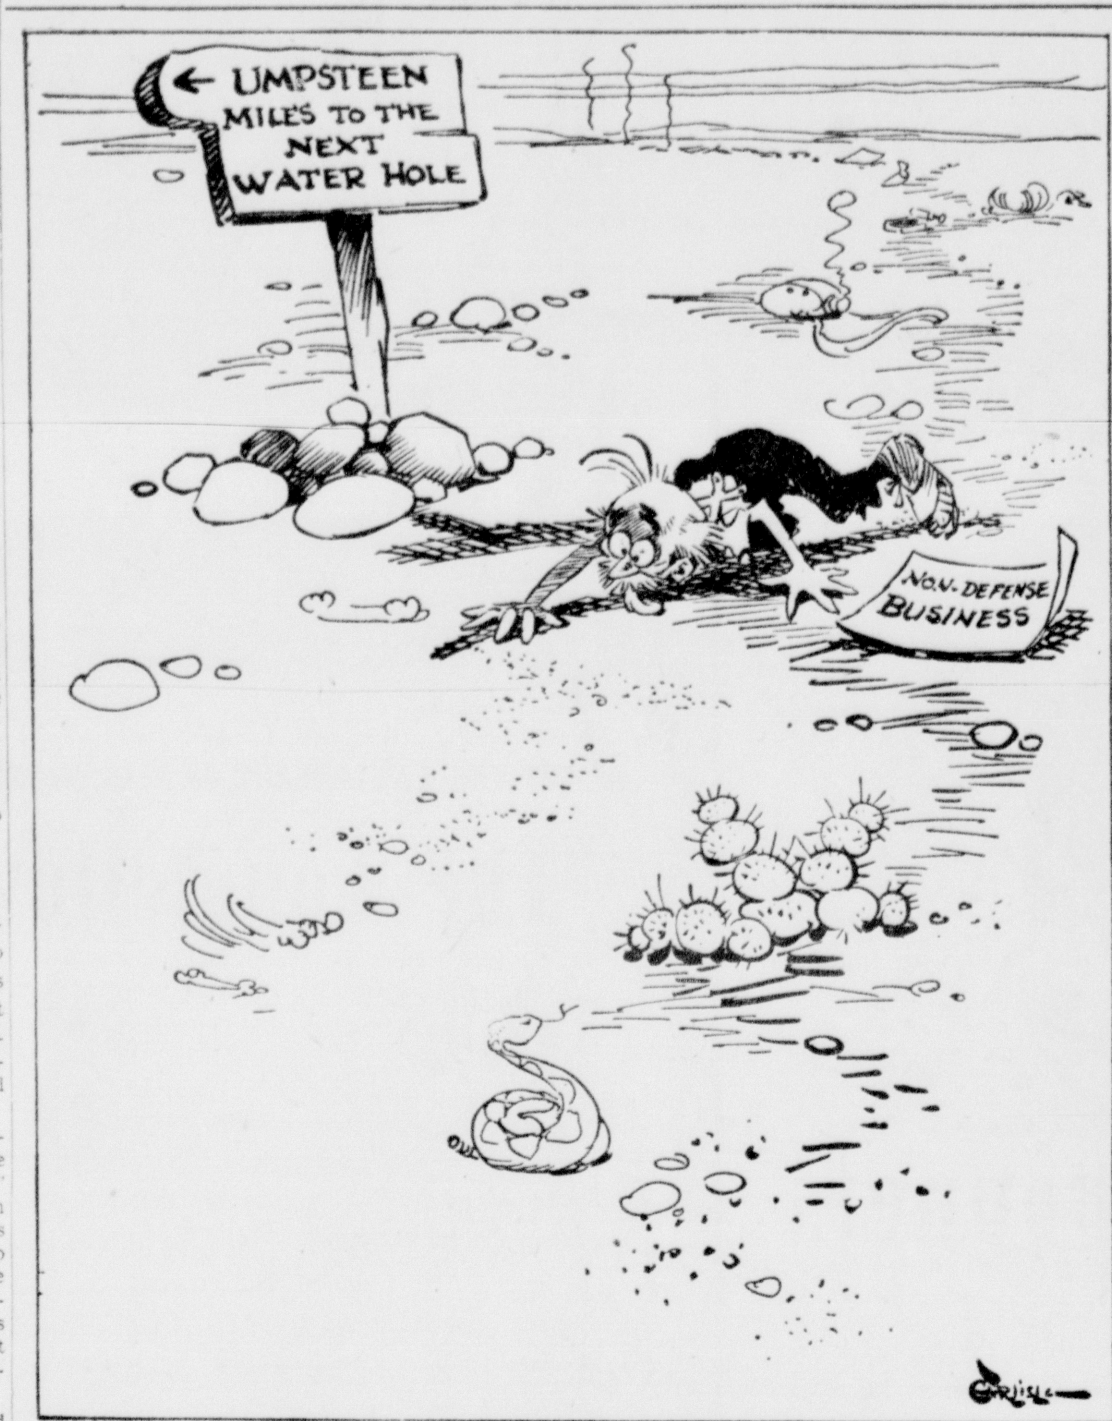

Not only are some of our own Yankees a bit critical of English statesmen's utterances and of the English press's comment relative to Uncle Sam's activities in connection with the war, I notice that Canadians incline to be similarly critical. Their news correspondents are pretty numerous in Washington, on war assignments. They think they understand the United States far better than their home islanders, and their freely expressed judgment is that the latter indulge in considerable comment that they

REPRESENTS INDUSTRY

R. C. Cosgrove, vice-president, The Crosley Corporation, Cincinnati, has been named, at the direction of the Office of Production Management, as a member of the Mechanical Household Refrigerator Subcommittee of the Electrical Defense Industry Advisory Committee, to co-operate with the OPM and OPAC in respect to problems of the industry growing out of the defense program. Mr. Cosgrove is one of twelve leaders of the industry to make up this sub-committee.

THE FORGOTTEN MAN OF 1941

Censorship Is Wrong Answer for Use Of Propaganda in Films, Johnson Says

don't think calculated to make a hit with Americans generally.

A Canadian's View

As one of them observed to me the other day, "If you, as a citizen of the United States, were to speak of some of your own senators and representatives as peace mongers, it would be your privilege."

But it comes with a poor grace from an Englishman. It's none of his business who's elected to Congress over here.

As to Senator Bennett Champ Clark's response to Minister Bracken's invitation to our lawmakers to visit England for a look-see, "I'll have to send my regrets," quoth the Missouri solon. "I'm a peace monger."

Much of the talk nowadays is of the commodity shortages caused by war priorities. In a world at war, military needs necessarily come first and civilian needs second.

Not enough attention has been paid to the remarkable fact that, in spite of the magnitude of our arms effort, the American people have been caused so little discomfort.

Everywhere else in the world the strictest kind of rationing is the rule. Only in the United States is there abundance of all the necessities and many of the luxuries.

That is partly due to the fact that this is a rich country, possessed of boundless resources. But resources in the raw are of value to no one. They must be produced, processed, manufactured, distributed, before they can contribute to economic and social life.

It is American private enterprise in the manufacturing field which is producing the tools of war in an ever-increasing stream—and at the same time producing enough of the tools of peace to maintain the highest standard of living on earth.

It is American private enterprise in the raw material field which is producing these vital commodities—oil, metals, coal, timber, etc.—which fuel and supply our factories.

It is American private enterprise in the merchandising field which is making available to all the people the food, clothing, and household goods which they enjoy in infinitely greater abundance than the people of any other land. You may patronize a big store or a little store, a chain store or an independent store—whatever it is, it represents a miracle of service, efficiency and economy.

It is American private enterprise in the service field—transportation, light and power, communication, etc.—which is rendering still another unsurpassed and essential contribution to the preservation, protection and maintenance of the American system.

That is the American story—the story of American private enterprise, in a thousand fields of activity. It is responsible for our greatness as a nation. It is responsible for the creation of a defense machine which will make us the foremost military power.

No Refusals

While I have rarely requested it, I have never been refused radio time in my life. I have had plenty of it and I am as far from agreement

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—It isn't easy for this column to support a position of Mr. Willkie. It did that once and now like the famous mouse caught in a cheese-baited trap when offered cheese as a diet by its captor, "that mouse didn't want any more cheese."

But after all, this column isn't about Mr. Willkie. It is about a cause he is defending—against an investigation of the motion picture and perhaps the radio industry to learn if they are publishing propaganda to get us into war.

The first difficulty is to define the word "propaganda" and the second is that whatever they are publishing is plain for the whole of our people to see and hear daily and millions of them do see and hear it. They have the evidence of their own senses and it doesn't require a legislative investigation to tell them whether it is war propaganda—or to try to be more accurate—whether it continuously plays up the case for American intervention or not.

Each Person His Own Judge

Each person must be his own judge of that. As far as I am concerned, I think it does, or at least has a tendency in that direction. But suppose it does, then what are we going to do about it? That in my opinion is the real vice of the so-called investigation. The moment a move is made to curtail freedom in expression of the printed word, the spoken or the visualized word, we begin to lose the most essential basis of democracy—freedom of opinion, debate, and expression.

If there were some sinister force, whether in public or private hands, which had the power to shut off all expression one side of an argument and to falsify or distort all expression on the other side, there would be something to rave about.

Coldly Objective

But such is not the case here. We have always the press and throughout this war, while pages of editorials and commentaries have argued these questions in the hot zeal of advocacy, pro and con, I have yet to hear even a charge that the news reports of almost all the press have not been factual and coldly objective a degree remarkable in the whole history of wars and unequalled anywhere else on earth.

As far as the radio is concerned, while it seems to be that most "news" commentators take little trouble to conceal their pro-war bias, yet, with the exception of a few ridiculous prognosticators, I haven't observed any of them in the act of playing fast and loose with the truth in their daily or hourly newscasting. How could they? They are dependent on the press services and, while they give us information a few hours in advance, the printed news columns would almost immediately refute any attempt to violate or distort the truth. Also it seems to me that I hear as many anti-war as pro-war radio speeches.

While I have rarely requested it, I have never been refused radio time in my life. I have had plenty of it and I am as far from agreement

Capital Politicos See Willkie's Hat Now in the Ring

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Wendell Willkie, laughing around with congressional friends outside the film inquiry made the most significant statement of the fray: "Well, I'm fixed until 1944."

Mr. Willkie may have been referring to his fee for representing the movie industry or his law business in general, but the fact that he put a 1944 limit on it, is what spurred the private comment of the politicians. It so happens there will be another opportunity for Mr. Willkie to try for the presidency that ominous year and apparently Mr. Willkie intends to be a candidate.

As for the war propaganda film inquiry, it was strictly a publicity affair with Mr. Willkie demonstrating what he had learned about that subject in the last campaign. Denied the privilege of examining witnesses Mr. Willkie stepped deftly around the committee to get his views known. He slipped to the podium a statement contradicting Senator Nye had been going fifteen minutes in the witness chair. Thus Mr. Willkie sent his cross-examination everywhere except into the committee record.

You may be sure no legislation restricting the film producers as to propaganda will come out of the hearing. The isolationist senators in charge indicated clearly they had none in mind. Apparently they just wanted the country to know they thought many leading war films were furnishing propaganda for war.

Annoying Incident

While all was pleasant on the surface of British-American-Japanese dickering for agreement, one incident annoyed the Washington officials. The Bank of England actually began discussions with the Yokohama Specie Bank to circumvent the joint Anglo-freezing of Japanese assets which have effectively frozen trade with that country.

A Japanese spokesman let it be known such a circumvention was being planned and even that it would be a barter arrangement where Britain would initially send about $60,000 pounds sterling of magnesium in return for 15,000 pounds sterling of asbestos and some foodstuffs. And this was planned while the United States has taken the lead in the freezing trade with Japan to top Japan from threatening largely British interests in the Orient. It sounded like scuttling.

No protest was made by this government, not even a private one, it is said. Nevertheless the British got a hit somewhere and dropped the deal suddenly.

Last word heard here was that Australia and South America had been proceeding with some barter arrangements with Japan, but that the rest of the British empire had decided to remain out. Diplomats have devious ways for promoting self-interest.

No Reversal Averred

The agricultural department does not look upon its quick reversal of policy as a reversal of policy. The switch of its program from the purpose of scarcity to that of plenty is described officially only as a readjustment. The machinery that was established to provide scarcity when prices were low and plenty when they were high.

But at the same time more pressure for higher and still higher prices in some lines is coming. It has already been decided, by Anglo-American negotiations, that a billion dollars of the new lend-lease money is to be used for British purchase of American foodstuffs. A half billion is still being used out of the first bill for that purpose. Together they represent the greatest commodity purchase ever made.

Wool But No Weapons

A publicity release from the grim, harboored War department currently starts off: "Mary had one little lamb, but each soldier in the United States Army has to have twenty-six sheep to provide wool for his clothing for his first year of service."

So far, however, no account has been provided by the department of how many Garands, tanks, antiaircraft guns have been furnished for the soldier in his first year of service.

New York's Central park was laid out in 1811.

of the goldenrod or deep under crimson clover where the new gives long, clear draughts. You smell the fragrance of the fruit, then your fingers know its taste, until tongue translates all flavor to the taste.

The man's ancient heritage from Old Testament days. What a joy to him who sits in peace "under a vine," where none make him afraid. But what greater joy for all who each shall call every man his neighbor under the vine and upon the fig tree.

with the extreme interventionists as I am with the extreme isolationists.

Most of the complaints about the movies attack fiction films. Doubtless some of them do distort actual conditions. All of them are addressed to the emotions. Like "Uncle Tom's Cabin" this could be some incitation to war. But they are plainly labeled fiction—which is the reverse of truth. People are so stuffed with the exaggerations of Hollywood that it is doubtful whether any 1941 "Uncle Tom's Cabin," either on the screen or between the covers of a book could stampede this nation. Even if that were possible the American answer can't be censorship.

After all the millions of words and feet of film the people of this country are between seventy per cent and eighty per cent opposed to unnecessary bloody involvement in this war except in the interest of realistic American defense.

Now Is The Time

From the Townson
News-Tribune

From time immemorial it has been the custom of embryonic stenographers to use, for the purpose of practice, a slogan that is particularly apropos to Republicans at this time.

That slogan, need we say, is the familiar: "Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their party."

Simple little thing, isn't it? Let's analyze this old bromide. "Now is the time," not next year, but right now is the time for "all good men" and by "good" is meant those voters having the best interests of their country at heart, "to come to the aid of their party."

Now, manifestly this slogan does not belong to the Democratic party, they do not need any assistance from good men or otherwise. Office holders and beneficiaries of public "pap" have gotten used to being fed by the government. They can be counted on to "vote right."

President Roosevelt has built up a gigantic machine, at the expense of the public, and those persons getting this public "soothing syrup" do not look into the future when this country will have to stop burning the candle at both ends. Some day we will have to get down to solid financial government, without the ever-present fear of inflation, and the knowledge that our children's children will be bearing the burden of Democratic wasting for generations to come. x x x

"Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their party." This is a clarion call to Republicans to get busy, right now. Tomorrow will be too late.

Man's Ancient Heritage

From the Christian

Grapes are ripe in the Nation's vineyards. Hanging heavy in luscious purple and gold, cool green and white, or warm sun-drenched clusters, the luminous globules, catching light between the deep shadowings of their large dark soft leaves, gleam like gems half seen in some shadowy cavern.

You tread softly under the purple globe of the grapes, and your voice, somehow, drops too. The peace of a different world is upon you—the world the bee knows in the panicles

CHAPTER FORTY-EIGHT

FOR ONE outrageous instant, after Ylena and the bodyguard had seen Tate slap Carlyle, Ylena thought, "I've lost my eyesight. I can't see!" And then she knew she had been blinded by an anger so violent it passed hatred. She heard Tony gasp. The veins in his temples were standing out so far she thought they would burst. His neck was swollen and in his eyes, black as ebony, there was murder.

Ylena clutched his arm. She felt her fingernails turn backward as he wrenched out of her hold. "Tony—please! I beg of you—Tony!" He eluded her. She ran after him and again grabbed his arm.

"Let me go, Miss Varanoff. Let me get to that man or I'll hurt you." He threw her aside; she hit the wall with a crash.

She panted, "Listen to me before Carlyle gets up here. Please believe me—I know exactly what to do." She pounded against his chest with clenched fists. "Tony, you must listen to me. I'll get rid of him. Oh, Tony, believe me when I say I'm completely over my love. He should help but he's I've often asked for a cure. Well, this is it!"

For a moment the young Italian looked into Ylena's desperately pleading face. "I believe you—here she comes," he said softly. He was smiling when Carlyle walked in.

Between the child's slightly meshed eyelashes was that same gleam of betrayal that Ylena had noticed that day in the park when she had been too proud to cry. Forcing her voice to be natural, Ylena said lightly, into the little girl's silence, "Dear me, but you are a mess. Better get rid of that dirt."

They listened to her run into the bathroom and lock the door. Tony said, beneath his breath, "She is crying now."

"I know," Ylena replied. "Tony, I am now going to do one of the most difficult things I've ever done in my life. Remember, you said you would trust me."

As the girl went down into the patio she felt the eyes of the watching bodyguard burning into her back.

"Darling," she exclaimed, looking down at Tate's soiled trousers, "have you been playing mud pies?"

He gave her a peculiar, rather uncertain and uncomfortable smile. "Didn't Carlyle tell you?"

"No. She just came in to wash her hands."

His features slid from uneasiness into relieved good looks, as he reached for her hand and said irreverently, "Tomorrow we'll be married."

"Yes," she perched herself on the flimsy arm of his steamer chair. "Tate, Rose has me a bit worried. She is so suspicious. Would you mind terribly if I asked you to leave so I can devote a little time to her? You'll have to change trousers, you know," she added with a slight smile.

Tate responded with a sheepish grin. "I think it's an excellent idea." He rose, pulled her into his arms and kissed her ardently.

When the girl re-entered the living room, Tony stood waiting, livid with rage. "Miss Varanoff," he demanded furiously, "have you lost your mind? I saw you there—His voice choked. Hot, bitter tears flooded his eyes and rolled unashamedly down his cheeks. "I saw you in that man's arms. How could you possibly do it?"

Crisply Ylena ordered, "Don't be a fool, Tony." She clamped warning fingers about his as Carlyle's footsteps came toward them. Except for a slight puffiness about the child's eyes, her appearance was normal.

"Carlyle," Ylena commanded in a voice not so tender that her little daughter would lose control, "get some things packed for a trip on an airplane—hurry now!"

Tony grinned through tears as he heard the youngster scampering into her room. "I'm beginning to understand."

The blond girl answered his smile of complete friendliness. "Tony, get reservations on the plane for Havana—"

Eagerly he bounded to the telephone. "How many?"

That remark nonplussed her. She frowned. "I don't know yet—get Scott Hamilton at the Northern ranch first. And hurry. Hurry!" she urged in excited incoherence.

She darted into Carlyle's rooms. Eyes, huge and thrilled beneath her bangs, she was singing a little tune as she snatched at favorite berets, sweaters, socks and toys. Ylena took a moment to strain her baby's body against her own, before she was up again and back at the living room telephone.

Tony was just completing the call. Ylena's knees practically buckled beneath her when she heard Scott Hamilton's voice pouring through the wire.

"Scott, you remember what you said about the usual bosh holding good—that I could call you if I needed you?" She conquered nervous tones and went on. "On Scott, I need you now. And not just for a little while. Scott, I'll always need you. I know how you feel. I know you're angry and hurt, but just listen to me," she pleaded. "You don't have to answer—not now. Just listen. Tonight, Carlyle and I are catching a plane to Havana. You remember I said it was a perfect spot for a honeymoon. I still think so, but with you, Scott. Oh, darling, try to forgive me." Her voice was again beginning to shake with terror. "There are so many things I want to say to you—so many things in my heart and I can't seem to get them said. If you do forgive me, Scott, meet us at the airport." She hung up and looked at Tony.

"Oh, Tony, he has to be there. He has to. Make reservations for Scott—then just pray for me!"

Again she rushed into Carlyle's room. The little girl looked up and said, "I sure hate to leave Scotty."

"How would you like to have Scotty with you forever?" her mother asked.

Carlyle's eyes were gigantic over the thought. "Do you mean forever and ever like I say at the end of my prayers?"

"Yes," cried Ylena, "that is it exactly. Just like the end of a prayer."

Of the four, Rose showed the least excitement over the unheralded trip. She simply shrugged and got busy with lightweight luggage and lightweight clothing. "Here I go again," she said dryly. "Flies, gowns, dead flowers and onions!" But there was moisture in her glance and she moved with animation.

"Why the hurry?" Ylena asked. "We have two hours."

Rose countered, "Why the hurry?" The girl realized she had been for time. At the very moment Rose spoke, she was already wriggling into her traveling coat.

Ylena found herself praying that the plane would be late. Rose stood with her eyes fixed on the airport driveway. Tony also watched the driveway as well as Carlyle, who was in the arms of the Italian bodyguard.

"Barker will be surprised, won't she, when she finds our goodbye note?" Ylena asked, then asked what she really wanted to know.

"Oh, Rose, do you see him?" "No." The companion's gray eyes bit into the girl's. "Why don't you look for yourself?"

"I can't." Determinedly the blond girl kept her gaze away from the circular gravelway. While her ears strained for any sound that would tell her Scott was there, she, at the same time, calculated feverishly.

"Even if he started right when I called, he might not make it. With the Sunday traffic—" But the phrase that kept going through her head, making a whirling, was "Even if he had started." Because why should he race to her side?

On the far eastern horizon she saw lights flickering. Even before a youngster, who clutched a toy plane in his fist, yelled, "There she comes!" Ylena knew it was their ship.

Tremendous field lights flashed on and too quickly the giant liner approached. The salute and landing instructions took but such a short time. The ship banked, swooped and slithered to a stop.

Ylena put her face against the iron fence, still hot from the sun. I deserve it, she thought, staring at the plane now being refueled. It is exactly what I deserve for my blind idiotic stupidity. For not realizing that my contentment with Scott was actually a beautiful, serene love. Oh, I deserve it!

She turned and looked at Carlyle. She even called her name. But the little girl paid no attention. She was craning herself in Tony's arms. Poor baby, Ylena cried inwardly, and again looked toward the plane as if it were some evil thing.

And then she heard Carlyle yell. "Yippee!" It came from her throat with such gusto that Ylena knew it was Scott. Still she dared not look. She just sagged against the fence and cried helplessly. Even when she felt Scott's hand on her shoulders she could not face him. She heard his brisk voice in conversation with Tony and saw their luggage pass through the iron gate. There was nothing of Scott's with it. Rose, Tony and Carlyle went through the opening.

"Come on," Carlyle shouted. "Come on, Mamacita. Come on, Scotty." Her young voice ended on a puzzled, rather displeased note.

In the belittling tone Ylena knew so well, Scott said, "Seems to me I left you sagging against a fence once before—all soggy-eyed just as you are now."

She looked at him then, through clotted eyelashes. "I remember—that night at the Rose Lane ranch. And I remember what you said, Scott."

He looked down into her eyes and demanded, "What did I say?"

"You said you would never kiss me again until I asked you."

"Well, why don't you ask me?" She shook her head. "It's too late, Scott. I've let you slip away from me. I know you're not going with us. And why should you—simply because I beckon? I looked on the cart for your baggage—"

"Baggage! Good heavens, Ylena, what do you expect? I did well to get this packed." He yanked a toothbrush from his pocket. "I'm not a magician, you know."

Sick with relief, she leaned against him. "Oh, yes, you are," she gasped. "Yes, you are, darling." Her arms went up and around his neck. "And now kiss me, Scott, because I'm not just asking you—I'm begging you."

Several seconds later Scott lifted his lips from hers to say, "And high time, too." He led her through the iron gate toward the plane.

"But as I've always said—patience. Just like building a dam. You work and worry and wait—and all of a sudden, it just happens."

New Serial Will Begin Saturday

The new serial story "A Ride in a Paper Boat" by Marie Blizard, scheduled to start in the News this morning will start tomorrow morning instead.

Huge Trailer-Truck Overturns on Sleep Polish Mountain Grade

A large trailer-truck wrecked Wednesday night on Polish mountain when the driver lost control after his lights failed to function and the huge vehicle ran up a bank and then overturned across the highway.

The driver, B. L. Moody, of Bennington, N. C., was enroute to the Celanese plant with a seven-ton load of spoils. He was uninjured in the crash and told Sgt. Charles W. Magaña, of the state police, who investigated, that he could not explain how he escaped but he landed about ten feet in front of the truck cab which was completely demolished.

Traffic was tied up most of a six-hour period from 9 p. m. until 3 a. m. due to the cluttered condition of the highway. Almost 100 big boxes of spoils were strewn about the scene of the wreck.

Trainmen Protest Cut in Schedules

BALTIMORE, Sept. 11 (AP)—The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen has filed with the Public Service Commission a protest against the abandonment of twelve trains on five different Baltimore and Ohio lines in the state.

Charles W. Mitzel state representative of the brotherhood, asserted that the discontinuance of the trains "is neither necessary nor desirable and would put the traveling public to great inconvenience."

Mitzel asked permission to have the brotherhood represented by counsel at the hearing which the PSC has scheduled for next Tuesday.

Other protests against the proposed abandonment of trains included:

The Mount Airy Lion's Club—Secretary Charles B. Gendell asserted that "these trains play a very important part in our daily community living, and also for express service to the merchants."

Residents of the Keedysville area—two identically worded petitions. Residents of Lime Kiln and vicinity—a petition signed by fifty-nine persons.

Residents of Jamsville and vicinity—a petition signed by fifty-five persons.

Milk Price Increases

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Sept. 11 (AP)—The State Anti-Profiteering Committee was informed today that the retail price of milk must be increased two cents a quart to 14 cents in the Morgantown, Clarksburg and Fairmont areas if certain producers are to remain in business. A dozen producers and producer-distributors testified that the raise was necessary because of higher costs for feed, labor, transportation and other items, Attorney General Clarence W. Meadows, committee chairman, reported.

Today's GARDEN-GRAPH

By DEAN HALLIDAY
(Distributed by Central Press Association)

PREPARING TREES FOR TRANSPLANTING

Before moving trees having a large root spread, it is advisable to root prune them a season before they are to be transplanted. Large trees are usually transplanted in winter when the ground is frozen, thus making it possible to obtain a large ball of earth with the roots.

This Garden-Graph shows how to root prune a tree's roots. Make a deep cut all around with a sharp-bladed spade or dig a trench about the tree. Do this just within the area where you intend to dig the root ball for transplanting.

Fibrous feeding roots will form where the cut has been made about the trees, and these will help to sustain the tree's life when it is transplanted.

The department of Commerce acts as a clearing house for information concerning market research studies in American universities.

Weather Affects School

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 11 (AP)—County Superintendent G. William Ropp limited classes in Berkeley county schools to half a day for today and tomorrow because of the hot weather.

Enrollment Small

SHEPHERDSTOWN, W. Va., Sept. 11 (AP)—A smaller enrollment this year at Shepherd State Teachers' college was forecast today by Dr. W. H. S. White, president, although freshmen registrations rose above last year.

Child Should Be Taught Teacher
AppreciationParents' Main Problem Is To Help Youngsters Adjust Themselves

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

When your little child began school, you may have had some unhappy inner feelings as he applauded the virtues of his teacher. Some of your statements may have been wrong but what the teacher said was always right. Well do I remember such instances with one of our three children when he, in deep seriousness would say, following some remark by his mother or me, "Oh, no, Miss — says."

Always then we took the attitude, regardless of the facts, that what the teacher said was correct. We encouraged his hero worship of the teacher.

After several years at school, there occasionally came from the child remarks about the teacher and school of a very different tone, in which the teacher is considered by the child to have infringed on what this child supposed was just.

Talked Matter Over

Our method in these matters was: When the child consciously or unconsciously revealed what we considered very bad practice at school, we would let him talk freely so long as he was reasonably courteous; but would make no comments then. We waited for several days, probably talking it over in the meanwhile, planning in some instances to go to the school later, resolving that we would, when we went, exercise the nice amenities of social grace. We would go to talk things over calmly and courteously, not to quarrel with the teacher.

Understanding of Teacher

In numerous cases, we were able to build up in the child an understanding of the teacher and, in a few instances an enthusiasm for the very teacher he had most severely disliked.

Of course, the teacher and school are not always right, but they generally are. Even when we parents are sure they are wrong, we need to keep our heads and consider what the most practical thing to do from 6 to 12 to read? For the child about 11. As a rule, our main problem as parents is to help the child adjust himself to the school. In doing so, he usually will gain far more in personality character and education for the larger life than if we tried to change the school to suit him.

Take Life as It Comes

While there will be times when we will agree with the child that he was treated wrongly, we should try to lead him to see that in the teacher's place, with all her care, responsibility and nervous strain, we might do worse. Furthermore, we parents hope to guide the child to realize that after he leaves school he will often work for people and with people who won't respect his rights and feelings but to get on best with such people he will, while keeping his own self-respect, make the most of it.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. How might a parent know what are good books for the child from 6 to 12 to read? For the child about 11. As a rule, our main problem as parents is to help the child

A. Anyone may have a selected list for either age group by writing me at 235 East Forty-fifth street, New York City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Q. Why do you advise against trials to make a child confess when he is suspected of having stolen something or done some other wrong?

A. Because such trials do little more than practice him in lying and tempt his parents to punish him when he does confess. Then this child tends to connect the punishment with being caught (since this immediately follows the confession), rather than with the theft (which, generally happened hours or days before).

Three People Go to Sea To Find That Love, Like the Ocean, Isn't Always Smooth Sailing

By JOSEPH BARTON

Randolph Graham, middle-aged and rich and a bad enemy to have, held the wheel of his schooner as it crested the long indigo swells off the Keys. He was the Skipper once he stepped aboard the old, immaculate and refitted Gloucester schooner which he chose instead of the flossy yacht expected of his position.

"Been thinking over my proposition, son?" the skipper said casually to the slim, wiry youth standing near the aft deck, his mild blue eyes squinting against the sun. "I know the setup. If you marry Olivia, I'll take over this vessel shortly after the ceremony. Olivia is determined to have a romantic honeymoon, sail the Falcon down to the Galapagos or somewhere!"

Herbert frowned. "But, sir, I—I don't know anything about navigation. And it was all arranged—at least, I mean I had intended that we would take our honeymoon trip later. I have some rather interesting and important experiments to make on my new aviation gas research before I have a vacation!"

The Skipper groaned. "There speaks the voice of inexperience!" he glumly stated. "It will take a courageous man to wed Olivia—and handle her!"

The Skipper was not sanguine about the prospects for the young couple, to say the least. Herbert was a nice boy, perhaps a little too serious. Olivia was wild and headstrong, yet with a touch of his own practicability.

The future bride came to her father on the third day of the cruise. Her intelligent, pretty face was a mask that hid the frustration her eyes revealed.

"I gave the idea to Herbert straight, Skipper," she said right from the shoulder. "I told him what we'd do as soon as we were married. About the Falcon."

The Skipper Groaned

"I hope he measures up to your standards, daughter!" The Skipper reflectively sucked at the smelly stub of a pipe which he could get away with on board ship, but nowhere else. "I don't say that I envy the lad. He's going to have a tough time getting you down to wherever you've decided to drag him—in my pet schooner!"

Olivia looked him in the eye. She was ominously soft-spoken.

"You needn't have any qualms about the poor darling," she said slowly, "because he isn't going along. The marriage is off, definitely and eternally. He just informed me, very coldly and politely, that he intended to keep on with his precious experiments as soon as we reached port!"

"Oh, I see. Tough luck, kid!" The Skipper said clumsily. Herbert must be pretty dumb, or at least reckless, to put his foot down so unequivocally with Olivia. Lord, he hadn't been able to do it himself since the little tyrant had been able to talk! He'd set the foolish young man ashore, regretfully, and keep on with the cruise. He'd hate doing it. Herbert was a clean, fine boy.

"Put into port? What for?" Olivia demanded threateningly when he mentioned the thought. We'll keep right on as we started, without the marriage of course. We'll put the little student ashore as per schedule! I'll show him!"

The Skipper knew that it was useless to argue. Olivia had her mother and him pretty well buffaloed, even if he was a tycoon in the other half of his world. And if he couldn't handle the girl, how could he expect poor Herbert to accomplish the miracle?

"You've put your foot into it, son, but you're over 21, and supposedly able to do your own thinking," he told the young chemist later, trying to be friendly and ease the disappointment the boy must naturally feel. "I rather think you'd have made a good son-in-law, too. But we won't cry over it. When will I see you ashore? Any special place?"

Herbert looked surprised. "Why, I'm going along with you as we all planned. Olivia will get over her frustrated feeling soon enough, don't worry."

"You mean . . . you actually defied Olivia intentionally? That you intended to make her do things your way?" The Skipper looked at Herbert with a new light in his eyes. "It's practically unbelievable, if that's what you did!"

"Women haven't changed much inside since the caveman whacked his captive over the cerebellum with a mastodon's legbone and carried her off to his cave as his mate," Herbert said without any change of expression. "What kind of regard would Olivia have if I let her step all over me before we got fairly started? And, as I said, I can't sail. I have important work to do!"

"Well, I'm dashed!" The Skipper said reverently.

"You may as well get in shape to do that father-down-the-aisle stuff as agreed," Herbert declared confidentially. "I'm going into seclusion for the duration—and work on my notes. You'll see Olivia will be around to help me before day after tomorrow. And now, excuse me, I'm busy!"

"Yes, sir!" The Skipper said automatically. It wasn't until he had stepped out of the stateroom that he realized it. He hadn't said that to any man in that tone for more years than he could remember! It looked bad for Olivia!

He grinned at a sudden thought. He was taking good tycoon stuff into the family, needing only a litle developing. And Herbert would probably take care of that end himself!

MAKE HIM HELP YOU
THERE ARE hands on which you require the help of your opponents. Sometimes a winning finesse is vital to the making of your contract, but you cannot afford to try it. You may need all of the dummy's trumps for ruffing, and so cannot lead trumps through the fellow who sits at your right and has doubled you. Perhaps you can later make him lead trumps to you, at the tag end of the play. That gives you a finessing chance just as good as if you led through him.

West led his club 5 to the K and A, and the club Q was sent back for a ruff by South, Mrs. Harry L. Derby, who in soundness is at least equal to any other player in the social bridge circles at the Skytop club in Pennsylvania's Poconos. She planned the play perfectly. Seeing that she had three spades which might have to be ruffed, she went to work on them at once, determined to make East ultimately lead hearts to her.

The spade A was laid down to the second trick, then the spade 4 ruffed. She came to her hand with the diamond A to ruff a second spade, used the diamond K for another entry and ruffed the spade Q. Then she deliberately gave up a diamond, East discarding his club 6 and West winning West returned a diamond, East having to ruff with one of his four trumps. He used the 6, and the 7 won. The J went to East's K, but the last two tricks were the declarer's with the A and Q. She consequently lost only one trick in clubs, one in diamonds and one in hearts and made the doubled contract right on the head.

Marian Martin
PATTERN 9855

Plenty of verve in this new junior frock by Marian Martin! For a little girl who is beginning to be "clothes-conscious". Pattern 9855 has youthful details in a scalloped front yoke, a set-in belt, and gathered fullness below both the yoke and the waist-band. A rounded collar and long full sleeves gathered into a cuff give this young frock a tailored look. Or you can make it with a collarless round neckline and yoke sleeves, and back bodice in short sleeves, perhaps with the a contrasted shade. It's easily stitched up in a few hours. Mother, with the Sew Chart to guide you. Wouldn't it make a nice "surprise" for a good little girl, especially in a big, colorful plaid?

Pattern 9855 may be ordered only in girls' sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14. Size 10 requires 2½ yards 54 inch fabric.

THE AMAZING STORY OF MARY SANFORD AVERY

HOW SHE LOST 42 POUNDS OF UGLY FAT IN 60 DAYS
Reduced Bust 3 inches, Waist 5 inches, Hips 4 inches

YET SHE ATE PLENTY—TOOK NO REDUCING DRUGS—NO EXERCISES LOST NO VITALITY

Here's a true story, first published in Successful Living Magazine, that should bring joy and happiness to every woman who wants to slim down her figure—bust, hips, waist—who wants to lose 3 to 5 pounds of ugly fat a week. Miss Mary Sanford Avery weighed 194 pounds, 45 pounds overweight. She had a problem, for she wanted to reduce. Yet she liked to eat, and she was smart enough not to take reducing drugs, starve herself or injure herself with violent exercises. One day she listened on the radio to Dr. Edward Parrish, noted authority on reducing, former Health Officer, State of New York, Surgeon-in-Chief, Medical Staff U. S. Army Hospital, Puerto Rico.

She followed his Reducing Plan—enjoyed it—and in 60 days lost 42 pounds.

Here is Dr. Parrish's Plan exactly as used by Miss Avery and hundreds of other overweight men and women.

For lunch take 2 teaspoonsful of Cal-Par in fruit juice or any other beverage. Nothing else, except a cup of coffee if desired. For dinner and breakfast EAT AS YOU USUALLY DO. DON'T CUT OUT fatty, starchy foods, merely CUT DOWN on them. That's all there is to it.

Try Dr. Parrish's Reducing Plan for one week. See if you, too, aren't delighted with the way ugly fat seems to melt away as hips, bust, waist assume more fashionable proportions.

Most overweight cases should be helped by Dr. Parrish's Reducing Plan. Start it today.

Cal-Par is not a reducing drug. It is a delicious special purpose food supplying iron, phosphorus, calcium and Vitamin D, so often lacking in sufficient amounts by those reducing. It is this lack that often causes loss of vitality. Cal-Par plain or chocolate flavor, sold at all Health Food Stores and drug stores, including all Rand Stores.

NOW HEARS CLOCK TICK

A. M. Beethchen, Newark, N. J., writes: "Before using Otoline Ear Drops, I was so deafened that I could not hear the clock tick. After using Otoline, I can now hear the clock tick with both ears. Thousands now hard-of-hearing would hear clearly and distinctly again, and also get relief from buzzing, ringing head noises, clogged up feeling in ears, if imported wax that blocks ear canals and presses on sensitive eardrums was removed. Try Otoline Ear Drops as directed for this purpose. They are safe and contain an ingredient recommended by United States Public Health Service."

FASTER, FASTER RELIEF from TORMENT of Piles

Phedrocaine contains ingredient used by many doctors and dentists for faster pain relief.

TRIAL TUBE FREE

Old fashioned way: You clean nozzle after each application.

Here's why you get much faster, much longer relief from painful, itching piles—Phedrocaine ointment contains Benzocaine, a substance used by many doctors and dentists to deaden pain fast.

Phedrocaine also contains an ingredient used in most hospitals to soothe and relieve painful burns—that's why it works so magically fast to soothe the burning sensation of piles.

Phedrocaine is unlike any pile remedy you have ever used—not only because it brings faster relief but because it is easier, cleaner, more convenient to apply.

Phedrocaine is packed in individual tubes—convenient to carry in wallet or purse for emergency use anywhere, anytime.

No more big messy tubes with long, irritating nozzles to clean after every application.

Each Phedrocaine tube with its short bakelite nozzle, holds just the right amount of medication—not too much, not too little.

FREE TRIAL TUBE

Try Phedrocaine at our expense. Get a dollar package of 6 tubes at any Rand Drug Store. Use the Proof Tube attached to package. If you aren't delighted with Phedrocaine's faster, longer relief, bring the package back and get your dollar back.

Dogs and Cats To Be Killed by Electricity

FREDERICK, Md., Sept. 11 (AP)—Unwanted dogs and cats will be electrocuted in Frederick now.

The city has a new electrocution device described as a "quick efficient, and humane method" of dealing with animals that must be killed.

The device received its first test at a veterinary hospital, and was given the sanction of the society for prevention of cruelty to animals by C. Herbert Kreh, SPCA investigator.

Machinery about the size of a table-model radio produces the death-dealing current, and electrodes are attached to the animal's neck and spine.

Paul Mellon To Remain in Army

FORT RILEY, Kas., Sept. 11 (AP)—Private Paul Mellon, 34 year old son of the late financier, Andrew Mellon, has decided to remain in the army a year. He now is concluding thirteen weeks of basic training.

He is eligible for release Sept. 15 under legislation permitting married men and men over twenty-eight to return to civilian life.

Mellon volunteered for one year. He is the father of one child.

Washington County Men Leaving Army

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Sept. 22 (AP)—A considerable number of Washington county selectees are seeking to leave the army under the new 28-year age limit law, local draft board officials state.

Officials said the procedure is for an applicant for discharge to file his paper with his commanding officer, who then forwards it to the draft board. The board in turn gives it to the Red Cross to investigate the applicant's status. This report is returned to the commanding officer.

The soldier then can be honorably discharged if he is over the age limit. Board officials said they expected a large number of county men to be inducted in October, including some of the registrants who were given numbers in the second draft lottery earlier this summer.

Longevity Increase May Soon Cause Serious Social and Medical Problem

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
Our friend, Dr. Karl Menninger, contributed a review of Barclay Newman's book "Must We Grow Old?" which induced us to buy the book.

Dr. Menninger thinks that Mr. Newman, while he has not proved his point, has contributed some interesting suggestions to the age-old problem.

The most striking situation of Mr. Newman's book is to call attention again to the fact that we are living in a period of old people. In 1850 over half our population were under nineteen; nearly ninety per cent were under forty-five; we were a young, vigorous nation.

In 1940, only thirty-four per cent of our population are under nineteen, and twenty-seven per cent are over forty-five. Six and one half per cent of our population are over sixty-five today whereas in 1850 two and one-half per cent were over sixty-five.

If the present trend keeps on, by 1980 forty per cent of the population will be over forty-five, and fifteen per cent over sixty-five, and only twenty-five per cent under nineteen.

Consequences
These figures indicate a number of consequences. People over sixty-five are seldom independent, seldom self-sustaining, and seldom able to earn more than a partial living. In 1850 when there were only two and one-half per cent of them, and nearly ninety per cent of the population under forty-five

WIFE PRESERVERS

Sprinkle a few mint leaves with the tea leaves when you make iced tea, and you will save a lot of energy later that is usually expended in crushing the mint. You'll also get a subtler flavor than you would otherwise.

able to take care of them, this constituted no social and no medical problem.

Today, such movements as the Townsend party and old age pension legislation are indicators that the problem is a real one and not artificial. The Townsend movement did not start as a crank movement. It sprang from perfectly natural causes and we may expect more Townsend movements in the future.

The situation has given rise to a new specialty in medicine—geriatrics—the specialty of the diseases of the aged. Dr. O. H. Pepper of the University of Pennsylvania has for several years been devoting a clinic to this specialty but this pioneering is exceptional and medical schools have not yet added courses in this subject to their curricula.

However, when he gets down to the subject of whether old age can be prevented or whether we can prolong life any further, Mr. Newman, while he sticks to the known facts, has set himself a thesis which can hardly be proved.

Everybody on this subject always refers to the immortal piece of tissue which is part of the chick embryo kept at the Rockefeller Foundation. These animal cells, we are told, may live, forever, but this has nothing to do with so complicated an organism as man.

True, owing to our conquest of the contagious diseases of the early years of life, more people are allowed to live to twenty, and therefore live out their expectancy. This may bring them to seventy, eighty, ninety, and maybe one hundred, but there is no proof-recorded case of any human being's living much over one hundred years in modern times.

There were a number of these curiosities in earlier days in the world's history, so there is no indication that the minutes of the human life span have been prolonged by anything which Mr. Newman mentions such as food factors, or hormones, or improvement in the treatment of such diseases of later life as heart disease, diabetes, cancer, etc.

It is a little ironical to observe a book of this kind coming on the book-stalls blithely searching for a way to prolong life while the world is busily engaged in killing millions of young men in their prime and sowing the seeds of epidemic and disease, which will last through our generation.

Mr. Newman's concluding chapter is called, "Old Age, O Convenient Fiction." For Mr. Newman's benefit, I can tell him that old age is not convenient, nor a fiction.

Garrett Jury Returns Twenty Indictments

Session Termed "Very Quiet" by State's Attorney, Fraley

OAKLAND, Sept. 11.—The September term grand jury concluded its deliberations last evening following a three-day session. Thirty-eight witnesses were examined and twenty indictments were returned.

The session was termed "very quiet" by State's Attorney Neil C. Fraley, with nothing of much consequence transpiring. Indictments were returned for arson and for carrying a dangerous weapon. Other indictments were the usual violations, he said.

The jury, in making its report, noted it had given careful consideration to all alleged violations of the criminal laws brought to its attention. The jury also made an inspection of the county jail, sheriff's residence and various county officials and made recommendations as follows: Windows in jail needing attention, sheriff still in need of garage, the jail kitchen needing painting. The jury especially recommended a permanent covering for the open well near the side entrance to the court house, as it was believed the present covering was unsafe and dangerous. The clerk's office was pointed out also as needing paint and the front steps and walk leading to the court house in need of repairs.

In investigating the office of the county commissioners it was found that disbursements had been made without proper supporting vouchers and it was recommended that no disbursements be made without a proper supporting voucher.

D. E. Offutt was foreman of the jury and Carlton Bowser and Hubert Bowman, clerks. The charge to the grand jury was delivered by Associate Judge William A. Huster. Petit jurors will be required to report on September 22 when the criminal docket will be called.

Dinner Date Changed

The dinner meeting sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, at which Governor Herbert R. O'Connor will speak, will be held on Monday, September 22, instead of Tuesday, the 23, it was announced this morning by Charles L. Briner, president.

Governor O'Connor is scheduled to attend a national defense meeting on the 23, and would have been unable to be in Oakland on that evening.

At a meeting of the Jaycees last night plans were discussed for the governor's entertainment on Monday afternoon, preceding the dinner. A tour of nearby points is being arranged. Clyde Dahlgren and Carl Everly compose the committee on the dinner which will be in the Manhattan hotel at 7 o'clock. The club last night also discussed plans for a Halloween parade and celebration here with prizes for various costumes.

Heat Wave Ends

September weather became a close competitor for "hot" honors this year with the temperature reaching 90 on Tuesday and with eight of the first ten days of the month reaching 80 or better.

A thunder shower yesterday evening, however, brought an end to any sustained heat wave and placed the mercury at the 49 mark this morning. Prior to the storm, however, the thermometer had climbed to 85 degrees.

A search of the records at the government station at Weber's shows that September, 1925, was the warmest period, 12 of the first 13 days being 80 or better with a high reading of 91. In 1929 there were nine of the first ten days with 80 or better. The first day of September, 1932, struck the high mark with a reading of 95 degrees.

Enrollment Increases

Enrollment of pupils in the schools of Oakland has increased since the opening of the term last week.

The number at Oakland high school increased from 586 to 600 while in the elementary school the total was 421 compared to 414 the week previous. Seventy pupils enrolled at the parochial school, making a total of 1,091.

In the high school the enrollment was divided as follows. Seniors, 119; Juniors, 131; sophomores, 166, and freshmen, 184.

21 Called to Army

Twenty-one men left Oakland yesterday from the local draft board for induction into the armed forces of the United States. Twenty-two were scheduled originally but Baxton F. Hoye was deferred temporarily on account of an infected arm. Denver MacKing, who was deferred because of dependents, was replaced by William Arlington Fulmer.

Others to leave yesterday were William F. Humberson, Friendsville; Laurence Wensel, Oakland; Blaine Henry Miller, Accident; William Harold Hicks, Friendsville; Frank W. Shank, Kitzmiller; Bruce Oney Yommer, Jennings; George Harvey Brabson, Grantsville; George Henry Bowser, Accident; Christy Frances Merrbach, Accident; Harry Merle Bowser, Accident; George Carroll Pattison, Bloomington; Vaughn Andrew Bowman, Oakland; Raymond Clayford Friend, Swan-voir, Va.; Guy Earl Martin, Crellin; Melvin Edgell Arnold, Kitzmiller; Wilbur G. Fox, Friendsville; Foster Dewey Fike, Friendsville; Raymond Frederick Bowser, Accident; James Duncan Adams, Crellin; and Harry Denver Pike, Selbyport.

Howard Stuckley was transferred to a Baltimore induction board and will be drafted from that city in the near future.

Selective Service Act Is Causing Domestic Worries

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage — Distributed by Kind Features Syndicate, Inc.

Since the day the Selective Service Act took many husbands and sweethearts from their domestic and social circles, I have been receiving letters asking for advice. Accordingly, today I am printing three letters that represent to some degree the problems that are agitating sweethearts, wives and soldiers all over the country.—B. F.

The Sweetheart's Letter

"Dear Miss Fairfax: Please let me have some correct information as to whether an enlisted man may marry or not. For two years, I've been engaged to a boy who has been drafted and sent to — Post. "Ever since we've been engaged he has begged me to marry him, but I felt we'd be happier if we had something put by. But now circumstances are such that he must marry me. I have never made very much, being an operator in a beauty shop; still I have managed to have a little. But my fiancé, who worked in a gasoline station, has never been able to save anything.

"I wrote to him that I would be willing to marry him, and felt he should stand by me now. He has written to say that an enlisted man, below the rank of sergeant, may not marry. I wish you would tell me if this is true. If he refuses to be responsible I must know.

"UNHAPPY."

An officer from a nearby post, to whom I referred your question, informed me if a man is a good soldier, he may marry, if his girl is self-supporting, or if he has some income beside his pay. Also he must promise not to ask any special favors because he is married. Then, consent is likely to be given.

If you will send me your personal address, I will write to you further.

Soldier's Wife Worried

"Dear Miss Fairfax: "My blood fairly boils when I read all this stuff in the papers about getting girls to dance, sing and play-act for the soldiers, and the leave they're given to visit big cities. Are they supposed to be soldiers or young society men courted by heiresses? My grandfather was in the Civil war; my father in the Spanish-American war, and I never heard they expected so much fun.

"I'm working in a laundry, helping to support my child, and my husband sends me precious little money.

"WONDERING WIFE."

I've had a good many letters like yours, and I think it would be an excellent idea for ladies who are always asking, "What can I do to help?" to put in some of their time, money and energy on soldiers' wives in your position.

The Girl I Left Behind Me

"Dear Miss Fairfax: "I was going steady with one of the home-town girls and I know her folks and mine expected us to marry. Since I left home I've met girls I seem to like a whole lot better. What I want to know is how can I write to this girl back home, without hurting her feelings, and tell her I'm not really ready to be engaged?

"SOLDIER."

There isn't any pain-killing drug that can be applied to a case like yours. Better do the manly thing and say that conditions are so uncertain you think a formal engagement at this time would be unfair to her, and that you hope she'll go out with other friends.

Giving Daughter in Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax: I'm to be married within the next year. We would like to have a small church wedding, but my father will not walk down the aisle with me. He said three of his daughters have married without his assistance, and he doesn't intend to do so now at his age. I also have two brothers married.

Is there any other person who could give me away, so that I can have the church wedding I want?

A. D. C.

If your father, for any reason, does not care to walk down the aisle with you when you are married, it would be quite proper to have one of your brothers perform this office, preferably the older brother.

Doesn't Understand Her

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm very much in love with a girl who lives in a nearby town. I've shown her all times whenever I found it possible to "date" her, and very often she acts as if she's in love with me. But at other times, she treats me as if she cares nothing at all about me.

She's a puzzle to me and I can't understand her. Are all girls like this?

FRANK

If all music were loud and sustained, the compositions would become monotonous. Don't you think it's that way with girls in love? Sometimes they're sweet, tender, devoted. Again they're coquettish apparently indifferent and ready to run away from you—and that's only a few of their charming humors. I think your experience is that of almost every man in love.

If you really want to know how she feels about you, ask her. As in all other matters of life, there's nothing like frankness in love.

Complete Text of Roosevelt's Speech

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11 (AP)—The text of President Roosevelt's address follows:

My Fellow Americans:

The navy department of the United States has reported to me that on the morning of September fourth the United States destroyer Greer, proceeding in full daylight toward Iceland, had reached a point southeast of Greenland. She was carrying American mail to Iceland. She was flying the American flag. Her identity as an American ship was unmistakable.

Attacked by German U-Boat

She was then and there attacked by a submarine. Germany admits that it was a German submarine. The submarine deliberately fired a torpedo at the Greer, followed later by another torpedo attack. In spite of what Hitler's propaganda bureau has invented, and in spite of what any American obstructionist organization may prefer to believe, I tell you the blunt fact that the German submarine fired first upon this American destroyer without warning, and with deliberate design to sink her.

Our destroyer, at the time, was in waters which the government of the United States had declared to be waters of self-defense—surrounding outposts of American protection in the Atlantic.

List American Outposts

In the north, outposts have been established by us in Iceland, Greenland, Labrador and Newfoundland. Through these waters there pass many ships of many flags. They bear food and other supplies to civilians; and they bear material of war, for which the people of the United States are spending billions of dollars, and which, by congressional action, they have declared to be essential for the defense of their own land.

The United States destroyer, when attacked, was proceeding on a legitimate mission.

If the destroyer was visible to the submarine when the torpedo was fired, then the attack was a deliberate attempt by the Nazis to sink a clearly identified American warship. On the other hand, if the submarine was beneath the surface and, with the aid of its listening devices, fired in the direction of the sound of the American destroyer without even taking the trouble to learn its identity—as the official German communiqué would indicate—then the attack was even more outrageous. For it indicates a policy of indiscriminate violence against any vessel sailing the seas—belligerent or non-belligerent.

Not First "Piracy"

This was piracy—legally and morally. It was not the first nor the last act of piracy which the Nazi government has committed against the American flag in this war. Attack has followed attack.

A few months ago an American flag merchant ship, the Robin Moor, was sunk by a Nazi submarine in the middle of the South Atlantic, under circumstances violating long-established international law and every principle of humanity. The passengers and crew were forced into open boats hundreds of miles from land, in direct violation of international agreements signed by the government of Germany. No apology, no allegation of mistake, no offer of reparations has come from the Nazi government.

American Warship Followed

In July, 1941, an American battleship in North American waters, was followed by a submarine which for a long time sought to maneuver itself into a position of attack. The periscope of the submarine was clearly seen. No British or American submarines were within hundreds of miles of this spot at the time, so the nationality of the submarine is clear.

Five days ago a United States navy ship on patrol picked up survivors of an American-owned ship operating under the flag of our sister republic of Panama—The S. S. Sessa. On August seventeenth, she had been first torpedoed without warning, and then shelled, near Greenland, while carrying civilian supplies to Iceland. It is feared that the other members of her crew had been drowned. In view of the established presence of German submarines in this vicinity, there can be no reasonable doubt as to the identity of the attacker.

Steel Seafarer Sunk

Five days ago, another United States merchant ship, the Steel Seafarer, was sunk by a German aircraft in the Red Sea two hundred and twenty miles south of Suez. She was bound for an Egyptian port.

Four of the vessels sunk or attacked flew the American flag and were clearly identifiable. Two of these ships were warships of the American navy. In the fifth case, the vessel sunk clearly carried the flag of Panama.

In the face of all this, we Americans are keeping our feet on the ground. Our type of Democratic civilization has outgrown the thought of feeling compelled to fight some other nation by reason of any single practical attack on one of our ships. We are not becoming hysterical or losing our sense of proportion. Therefore, what I am thinking and saying does not relate to any isolated episode.

Long-Range Point of View

Instead, we Americans are taking a long-range point of view in regard to certain fundamentals and to a series of events on land and on sea which must be considered as a whole—as a part of a world pattern.

It would be unworthy of a great nation to exaggerate an isolated incident, or to become inflamed by some one act of violence. But it would be inexcusable folly to minimize such incidents in the face of evidence which makes it clear that the incident is not isolated, but part of a general plan.

The important truth is that these acts of international lawlessness are a manifestation of a design which has been made clear to the American people for a long time. It is the Nazi design to abolish the freedom of the seas, and to acquire absolute control and domination of the seas for themselves.

For with control of the seas in their own hands, the way can become clear for their next step—domination of the United States and the Western Hemisphere by force. Under Nazi control of the seas, no merchant ship of the United States or of any other American republic would be free to carry on any peaceful commerce, except by the condescending grace of this foreign and tyrannical power. The Atlantic ocean which has been, and which should always be, a free and friendly highway for us would then become a deadly menace to the commerce of the United States, and to the inland cities of the United States.

The Hitler government, in defiance of the laws of the sea and of the recognized rights of all other nations, has presumed to declare, on paper, that great areas of the seas—even including a vast expanse lying in the Western Hemisphere—are to be closed, and that no ships may enter them for any purpose, except at peril of being sunk. Actually they are sinking ships and killing our citizens.

Fate of Other Nations

One peaceful nation after another has met disaster because each refused to look the Nazi danger squarely in the eye until it actually had them by the throat. The United States will not make that fatal mistake.

No act of violence or intimidation will keep us from maintaining intact two bulwarks of defense: first, our line of supply of material to the enemies of Hitler, and second, the freedom of our shipping on the high seas.

His intrigues, his plots, his machinations, his sabotage in this new world are all known to the government of the United States. Conspiracy has followed conspiracy.

Plots in South America

Last year a plot to seize the government of Uruguay was smashed by the prompt action of that country, which was supported in full by her American neighbors. A like plot was then hatching in Argentina, and that government has carefully and wisely blocked it at every point. More recently, an endeavor was made to subvert the government of Bolivia. Within the past few weeks the discovery was made of secret air landing fields in Colombia, within easy range of the Panama canal. I could multiply instances.

To be ultimately successful in world mastery, Hitler knows that he must get control of the seas. He must first destroy the bridge of ships which we are building across the Atlantic, over which we shall continue to roll the implements of war to help destroy him and all his works in the end. He must wipe out our patrol on sea and in the air. He must silence the British navy.

It must be explained again and again to people who like to think of the United States navy as an inviolable protection, that this can be true only if the British navy survives. That is simple arithmetic.

Sees Peril to Navy

For if the world outside the Americas falls under Axis domination, the shipbuilding facilities which the Axis powers would then possess in all of Europe, in the British Isles, and in the far east would be much greater than all the shipbuilding facilities and potentialities of all the Americas—not only greater, but two or three times greater. Even if the United States threw all its resources into such a situation, seeking to double and even redouble the size of our navy, the Axis powers, in control of the rest of the world, would have the man-power and the physical resources to outbuild us several times over.

It is time for all Americans of all the Americas to stop being deluded by the romantic notion that the Americas can go on living happily and peacefully in a Nazi-dominated world.

Generation after generation

America has battled for the general policy of the freedom of the seas. That policy is a very simple one—but a basic, fundamental one. It means that no nation has the right to make the broad oceans of the world at great distances from the actual theatre of land war, unsafe for the commerce of others.

That has been our policy, proved time and time again, in all our history.

Our policy has applied from time immemorial—and still applies—not merely to the Atlantic but to the Pacific and to all other oceans as well.

Sees Act of Aggression

Unrestricted submarine warfare in 1941 constitutes a defiance—an act of aggression—against that historic American policy.

It is now clear that Hitler has begun his campaign to control the seas by ruthless force and by wiping out every vestige of international law and humanity.

His intention has been made clear. The American people can have no further illusions about it. No tender whisperings of appeasement that Hitler is not interested in the Western Hemisphere, no soporific lullabies that a wide ocean protects us from him—can long have any effect on the hard-headed, far-sighted and realistic American people.

Because of these episodes, because of the movements and operations of German warships, and because of the clear, repeated proof that the present government of Germany has no respect for treaties or for international law, that it has no decent attitude toward neutral nations or human life—because Americans are now face to face with abstract theories but with actual, relentless facts.

Not Localized Operation

This attack on the Greer was no localized military operation in the North Atlantic. This was no mere episode in a struggle between two nations. This was one determined step towards creating a permanent world system based on force, terror and murder.

And I am sure that even now the Nazis are waiting to see whether the United States will by silence give them the green light to go ahead on this path of destruction.

The Nazi danger to our western world has long ceased to be a mere possibility. The danger is here now—not only from a military enemy but from an enemy of all law, all liberty, all morality, all religion.

There has now come a time when you and I must see the cold inexorable necessity of saying to these inhuman, unrestrained seekers of world conquest and permanent world domination by the sword—"you seek to throw our children and our children's children into your form of terrorism and slavery. You have now attacked our own safety. You shall go no further."

Normal practices of diplomacy—note writing—are of no possible use in dealing with international outlaws who sink our ships and kill our citizens.

States Army and Navy are to carry out that policy—at once.

The sole responsibility rests upon Germany. There will be no shooting unless Germany continues to seek it.

Not Acting Hurriedly

I have no illusions about the gravity of this step. I have not taken it hurriedly or lightly. It is the result of months and months of constant thought and anxiety and prayer. In the protection of your nation and mine it cannot be avoided.

The American people have faced other grave crises in their history—with American courage and American resolution. They will do no less today.

They know the actualities of the attacks upon us. They know the necessities of a bold defense against these attacks. They know that the times call for clear heads and fearless hearts.

And with that inner strength that comes to a free people conscious of their duty and of the righteousness of what they do, they will—with Divine help and guidance—stand their ground against this latest assault upon their democracy, their sovereignty, and their freedom.

Campaign of United Jewish Appeal To Open Here Nov. 4

Dr. Manfred Arie Will Be Principal Speaker at Meeting

The United Jewish Appeal campaign will open here Tuesday, Nov. 4, at a mass meeting of Western Maryland Jews in the B'er Chayim temple vestry. Dr. Manfred Arie, noted Viennese jurist, will be the principal speaker at the meeting, according to Max Spear, local chairman.

The United Jewish Appeal is composed of three national groups, the Joint Distribution Committee for overseas relief, the United Palestine Appeal for colonization and rehabilitation in the Holy Land and the National Refugee Service for integration of the refugee into American life.

A quota of $10,000 has been set by the local committee toward the $25,000,000 national goal.

The local committee is composed of Max Spear, chairman; Isaac Hirsch and Irving Rosenberg, honorary chairmen; Barnett Beneman, Aaron Lazarus, Adolph Hirsch, Joseph Klawan, Cumberland; George Stern, Frostburg; and Mose Kaplan, Keyser. Treasurers are Clarence Lippel and Harvey H. Weiss. The Rabbi Aaron H. Lefkowitz is secretary.

Local representatives at the state executive conference held Sunday in Baltimore were Rabbi Lefkowitz and Spear.

While I realize that the more business we have, the more dirt we are likely to have, I am told that there are devices on the market for the control of smoke that are comparatively inexpensive.

It would certainly be for the general good if the main producers of smoke were required to use these devices, and if you are able to bring this about, the improvement will be greatly appreciated by the women living in this section of town."

Every day or two Chatter will publish other letters on the smoke elimination campaign, so if you haven't expressed your opinion and want to, just drop Chatter a line.

Man Held at Pittsburgh For Impersonating Federal Agent Here

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 11 (AP)—Lynn C. McElroy, charged with impersonating a federal officer in Cumberland, Md., about a year ago, was committed to jail in default of $1,000 bond by a United States commissioner pending a further hearing.

Federal agents testified McElroy displayed a fictitious identification card, purported to have been issued by the "Bureau of Counter-Espionage" of the War department. The agents said there was no such department.

The government wants McElroy returned to Maryland for trial in the district court at Baltimore. He said he is a journalist and political writer.

VFW Speaker Urges Citizens To Unite

McKenzie Says What Happens 5,000 Miles Away Affects Us Tomorrow

The war abroad is a total war, a World war, and what happens 5,000 miles away today affects us tomorrow, William L. McKenzie, of Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, told a radio audience last evening in his regular monthly address in the "Speak Up for Democracy" series, broadcast over station WTBO.

"If we are to achieve and maintain our full strength through unity, we cannot afford to be sidetracked into permitting events and propaganda to confuse the main issue," declared McKenzie.

"We despise Communism as we loathe Nazism. We would not want to see Communism supreme in the world any more than Nazism. But the fact remains that Russia is battling Nazi Germany, and the latter is the great menace."

"Let us remember that every Nazi tank destroyed, every gallon of gasoline consumed, every plane shot down on the Russian front helps to destroy the menace to our security."

"We have certain obligations as Americans. We have certain duties to our flag, to ourselves and to our children. We must perform those duties in the spirit of democratic unity, and we must do so today if liberty is to have a tomorrow."

In conclusion McKenzie asked all to join in this campaign which calls upon every loyal citizen to "Speak Up for Democracy."

Crothers' stage hit. With Joan Crawford, Robert Taylor, Greer Garson and Herbert Marshall, currently appearing at the Maryland theater.
In the comedy of scrambled loves,
Miss Crawford plays her dramatic role as a woman who has been loved by Taylor, and becomes infatuated with her publisher, a suave character played by Marshall. Tay-

Miss Garson's close friend and Elaborately costumed and staged, the picture features an amazing times. Adrian designed striking new fashions, expected to set next sea-

The government puts a huge price

But Belle Starr is still deter-

"Citizen Kane" Has
Colorful Actors
Featured with star Orson Welles in "Citizen Kane," starting today at the Liberty the most hotly discussed picture ever to come out of Hollywood, are the actors of the Mercury
Theater.
Who are the actors of the Mercury
Theater?
You'll have to ask Orson Welles—as usual. They're his actors, and they alternately love and hate him.
They're the actors with whom Welles made such a startling success on Broadway, and the chances are you've never heard.

They're all highlights in "Citizen Kane." They come to this eminent position by right of hard work, too.
For Welles' best friend, was Katharine Hepburn's leading man for the long stage run of "The Philadelphia Story."
Dorothy Comingore, who plays
Kane's second wife, was discovered by Charlie Chaplin at the Carmel Little Theater in California.
William Alland used a trick to get Welles' attention. He hired out as an errand boy, and brought Welles his lunch in his dressing room. Once inside, Alland locked the door and declared a fiery speech of a character he wanted to play. He got the job.
These stories are typical. A background of radio acting, or of long apprenticeship preparing for the Welles graduating touches, and you have a Mercury Actor. The company may disband from time to time while its members star elsewhere, as for instance does George Coulouris

Brooklyn Defeats St. Louis in 11 Innings

Dodgers Increase League Lead to 10 Full Games

With Teams Appear Jittery, Four Errors Being Charged to Each

By J. H. ANDERSON
 ST. LOUIS, Sept. 11 (AP)—Battling the red-hot National League, the Cardinals today by beating Brooklyn 4 to 3 in 11 innings, had some hard luck in the victory margin in the first game which may determine the champion.

Teams appeared jittery at the start of the game, and four errors were charged to each.

Medwick Starts Rally
 The start of the final scoring, Joe Medwick, once a Cardinal favorite, and a hot liner which Jimmy Pate leaped and caught, then Cookie Lavagetto walked off first base. Ernie White, who outpitched the Cardinals, pitched the game. The Cardinals had some hard luck in the victory margin in the first game which may determine the champion.

Manager Leo Durocher and his players were protesting and kicking decisions all day. The argument was especially intense in the eighth inning when the Cardinals claimed that White had hit and that Pete Reiser should have been called out. But umpire Al Barlick held his ground.

In the third inning, the Cardinals scored four singles and an error. Don Padgett and C. Crespi driving in the runs. The Cardinals opened the fourth with the hit of White, a single to right. White then hit Reiser after he had been thrown out. Medwick was safe on Martin Marion's hit and the bases were full.

Four Runs Unearned
 Medwick's fly scored Reese and Camilli cleaned the bases with thirty-third home run of the game. The runs were unearned. All the runs were unearned. All the runs were unearned.

Representatives of the South Cumberland Sunday School Softball League thrashed out plans for a Shaughnessy series last night at a meeting at the B. & O. Y. M. C. A. with the first game scheduled for Monday at 5:30 p. m. on the Penn Avenue field.

This game will be between United Brethren and Calvary church teams. The other two teams which will participate in the series is muddled with Second Baptist claiming a game which they say they won earlier in the season.

Second Baptist defeated Moffatt Memorial yesterday and this gave them a tie for fourth place but they claim the added game by the early season. The affair will be handled to the Grievance committee today. A decision will name the team which is scheduled to play Grace Baptist Tuesday on the Locust Grove field at 5:30 p. m.

Field and Davis will officiate at the United Brethren and Calvary game while Davis and Bartman will handle the game Tuesday.

Packers Say Old Boy To Go
 GREEN BAY, Wis., Sept. 11 (AP)—Arnold Herber, for many years one of the greatest forward passers in professional football, is being released by the Green Bay Packers.

Coach E. L. (Curley) Lambeau revealed today that he had asked waivers on Herber and five other members of the team, Champ Siebold, veteran tackle; Dick Evans, Iowa end; Lou Midler, Minnesota guard; Henry Luebke, Iowa tackle; and Bob Kahler, Nebraska half-back.

Siebold was starting his seventh year with the Packers; Midler and Evans were second year men and Kahler and Luebke recruits.

Herber joined the Packer squad in 1931. His passing helped win a championship that year. It was Herber's passes to Don Hutson, an end, that helped win championships in 1936 and 1939.

Lambeau said that Herber had been offered the post of assistant coach with the Long Island Indians, Green Bay's farm club.

Johnstown-Frostburg Ball Game Cancelled
 The Johnstown-Frostburg American Legion baseball game scheduled for Sunday has been canceled according to Enoch Price. The game was called off by the Johnstown team after it was rained out today in a City League series, making it necessary for the team to play the game Sunday. Price said an effort would be made to book the game for the following Sunday at the Frostburg Community Ball Park.

COLLISION AT THE PLATE

Mickey Owen (right), Dodgers catcher, ended up on his back but only after he tagged out Babe Dahlgren, Cubs first baseman, as Dahlgren tried to score in the eighth inning of the doubleheader opener in Chicago. The Cubs came from behind to win this game, 5-4, and also took the nightcap, 5-3, to reduce Brooklyn's league lead to one game over the Cardinals who won a doubleheader.

Mont Is Seen as Threat to Regular University of Maryland Quarterback

Allegany High Graduate Is Triple-Threat Back with Promise

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Sept. 11 (AP)—If the University of Maryland's futile Terrapins of 1940 become the terrifying Terps of 1941, it probably will be due to a band of hard-driving sophomores already determined to chase the lettermen right back to the bench.

Maryland's unique three-man coaching board, still winning at the nightmarish memory of last season, is in agreement that the team won't set any grid worlds afire.

On the other hand, this season can't be much worse than last, when the Terrapins gasped out thirty-three points in nine games against 172 for their opponents and dropped six decisions while winning two and tying one.

Chairman Jack Faber of the coaching board and his colleagues Al Heagy and Al Woods, point out that the team closed strong with a victory over Rutgers and a tie with a favored Washington and Lee eleven.

Coupling this brightening observation with the fact that Maryland lost only two top-flight performers by graduation—Center Bob Smith and Halfback Joe Murphy—the coaches are hopeful of getting on the heavy side of the Southern Conference standings for the first time in several years.

Veteran Back Challenged
 Mearle Du Vall, veteran quarterback and one of fifteen lettermen on the squad of forty, is among those challenged by the surging sophomores. Two of 'em, Tommy Mont of Cumberland, Md., and John Brenner of Hollidaysburg, Pa., are after his job.

Both youngsters can pass, kick and run. In practice sessions each has shown promise of capable generalship.

Mont tips 180 pounds, can pass and punt. Brenner, 175, also can throw 'em and boot 'em. Du Vall has three seasons' experience, is a fast triple-threat at 170 pounds.

"Until these sophomores actually have some game experience, it will be hard to tell," Faber declared. "They may be great, and they might just fold up, but they all look pretty good now."

For the blocking assignments, Maryland must turn to a couple of versatile three-year veterans, Bernie Ulman, 170, formerly of Forest Park High, Baltimore, and John Cordyack, 165, who came from Osceola Mills, Pa., high school.

Hagerstown Boy Mentioned
 Ulman and Cordyack will get some help from another soph. George Barnes, 190, from Hagerstown, Md.

Jack Mier, 175-pound junior from Valley Forge, Pa., Military Academy, will fight it out for fullback with Jack Wright, 200-pound sophomore.

Athletics Gain 2-1 Victory over Chicago Sox

Herman Besse Celebrates Return to Club With Six-Hit Pitching

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 11 (AP)—Southpaw Herman Besse celebrated his return from the Toronto farm today by pitching the Athletics to a six-hit victory over the Chicago White Sox. The score was 2 to 1.

The A's got six hits off Johnny Rigney, Benny McCoy led off with a double in the first inning, advanced on a fly and scored on a passed ball. Besse himself slammed in the other run with a single after Sam Chapman and Al Rubeling had also singled.

4 Pen-Mar Teams Battle Sunday In Playoffs

Old Germans at Wellersburg and Mt. Savage at Centerville

Four Pen-Mar Baseball League teams will take the field Sunday in the second game of the Shaughnessy playoff series for the loop championship.

The Cumberland Old Germans will tangle with Wellersburg at 2:30 p. m. on the Pennsylvania field. Manager Charley Doyle will probably start his big righthander Derl Keller with Earl Seller receiving his slants. Manager Bob Witt of Wellersburg will rely on his star chucker Paul Thomas with Bob Horn doing the backstopping. The Old Germans defeated Wellersburg last week 26-11.

The other contest will find Mt. Savage battling the Centerville ball-laws at 3 p. m. This game will also be played in the Keystone state. George Beal or Bernard "Speed" Baker will toss them plateward for Savage with either Harry Winfield or Milton Cochran catching. Centerville will rely on Milton Rose or Francis Chapman in the box with Roy Mickey serving behind the platter. Savage won last week 6-1.

Ray Middleton will call the balls and strikes and Andy Dunn will work the bases at the Savage-Centerville game. Carl Cook will be behind the plate and Bobby Cavanaugh around the bases at the Old German-Wellersburg game.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 11 (AP)—Penn State's football squad of thirty-seven players is to arrive at noon tomorrow for a two-day workout with Navy's pigskin hopefuls.

The Middles and the Nittany Lions, with their eyes on opening day opponents, may scrimmage each other at the informal sessions. The Pennsylvanians will leave Saturday night.

Navy opens its season Sept. 27 against William and Mary. Another Eastern college football squad may help the Tars get in shape for the opener by participating in a joint practice session Sept. 19 and 20.

Suede Larson, Navy headcoach, said his charges were in good shape. Only two men are on the injured list—Wes Gebert and Zeke Zechella both backs.

The Tars donned football togs today for a session in pass defense and in punting. The players reported for practice in shorts yesterday because of the heat.

Southern Golfers Win in Amateur Tourney

Mrs. Lawson Page Appears To Be Best of Field

Becomes Semi-finalist for Third Time by Defeating Janet Younker

By BILL KING
BROOKLINE, Mass., Sept. 11 (AP)—With a victory in each bracket, the South took a firmer grip today on the Women's National Amateur golfing crown—a title Southern golfers have dominated for three of the past four years.

The South's strongest title claimant appeared to be Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page of Greensboro, N. C., the 1937 champion, who became a semi-finalist for the third time in five years by defeating Janet Younker of White Plains, N. Y., 5 and 4 in today's quarter-final play at the country club.

In the upper half, Mrs. Frank Goldthwaite of Fort Worth, Tex., out-fought Mrs. Sylvia Annenberg Leichter of Flushing, N. Y., the persistent Metropolitan title, for a 19-hole match.

The East and West could not miss sharing the other triumphs for sectional rivals were forced to compete against each other.

As a result, Helen Sigel of Philadelphia, loved among Mrs. Goldthwaite after gaining a 1 up win over Mrs. Reimert M. Torgerson of Great Neck, N. Y., and Mrs. Betty Hicks Newell of Long Beach, Calif., drew Mrs. Page after besting Clara Candler of Pasadena, Calif., a 1940 semi-finalist, by a 2 and 1 margin.

By registering the most one-sided triumph of the day, Mrs. Page avenged the South, for Miss Younker had stunned that golfing sector by putting off its brilliant defending champion, Betty Jameson of San Antonio, Tex., in the first round.

Mrs. Page went out in 40 to become one up at the ninth and won the next four holes by playing one-under-par over that stretch. She then wound up the match by going one over on the short fourteenth for a half.

Pirates Split Doubleheader With Boston

Pick Up Half a Game on Cincinnati in Battle for Third Place

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 11 (AP)—The Pirates split a doubleheader with the Braves today annexing the first, 7 to 5 and dropping the nightcap, 10 to 0, but managed to pick up a half game on the Reds, now trailing Cincinnati by a half game in their third place battle.

Kenny Heintzelman, although shaky at times, got credit for the opener. Tom Earley had things under control in the night cap and his mates took full advantage of six Pirates misplays.

Officials Discuss Football Rules
Interscholastic football rules were discussed Wednesday night by members of the Western Maryland Football Officials' Association at a meeting held in the board of education offices here.

All Cumberland district schools and Cumberland Valley Athletic School members will compete under the interscholastic code this season. These rules were in effect for certain contests last year, so the association pondered changes as well as differences between the scholastic and intercollegiate codes at last night's session.

The meeting was attended by Coaches Herman Ball of Allegany, Johnny Long of Fort Hill and Bill Hahn of Ridgeley. Arthur G. Ramey, president of the association, and John McDonald, the secretary, and also by Dan Staley, Mel Henry and Johnny Blough.

BLOWING EASY MONEY

Starting early in April and moving along into May, it is interesting to note the number of big killings long-shot players have blown in baseball alone. For a few examples—

1. 200 to 1—That a young Red rookie named Elmer Riddle would outpitch both Bucky Walters and Paul Derringer.

2. 50 to 1—That the world champion Reds would be fourteen games back of the pace when Dodgers and stretch a week after Labor Day.

3. 400 to 1—That after Cleveland's Indians had picked up a lead of seven games over the Yankees the same Indians would be twenty-four lengths away a week after Labor Day.

4. 50 to 1—That neither Buck Newsom nor Paul Derringer, World Series heroes last October, would break even in games won and lost by mid-September.

5. 20 to 1—That Ted Williams would be leading Joe DiMaggio fifty points in hitting by this date.

6. 100 to 1—That at this date Ben Hogan would be facing his fifty-eighth consecutive "in the money" golf tournament.

7. 100 to 1—That Joe DiMaggio would hit safely in more than fifty consecutive games.

8. 10 to 1—That Bob Feller wouldn't win more than twenty-five games with what looked to be a pennant-winning club.

9. 10 to 1—That after losing four races and then being beaten six lengths by Our Boots at Keeneland, Whirlaway would turn and win the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont.

10. 100 to 1—That, after failing to win a major tournament in 15 years, Craig Wood would win both the Masters and the U. S. open.

11. 200 to 1—That a ball club could win a pennant by something like a twenty-game margin without having a single twenty-game pitcher.

12. 100 to 1—That Buddy Baer would knock Joe Louis through the ropes in the first round.

13. 50 to 1—That the Dodgers and Cardinals would run neck and neck through four consecutive months and still be tied up in a double knot on Labor Day.

In many cases the shorter odds we have suggested could have been 400 to 1 or 500 to 1, almost any price you might have asked.

If someone had made a fifteen-guess parlay on these various turns, he would have drawn the honor of paying off a good part of the national debt when the tax collector arrived on the scene with about fifty trucks.

Brooklyn Is Ready To Collect Crop From Farm Clubs

Ten Young Men Ready To Make Jump To Big Show Next Year

By WHITNEY MARTIN
NEW YORK, Sept. 11 (The Special News Service)—Larry MacPhail has purchased a pennant (well, maybe) for Brooklyn this year by shopping around at the better places and not quibbling over price, but the day when he must resort to this free-handed spending are numbered.

From here on the Dodgers are going to plug the peaches from their own trees. It's taken about three years to do it, but MacPhail now has his minor league orchards to the producing stage, and about ten young men are ready to make the jump to the big show next year.

When MacPhail came to Brooklyn the Dodgers had a farm system which could be called a farm system only with poetic license. One minor league club was owned, and there were working agreements with two or three others.

The first year he didn't do much about the farms, as it was a tough enough job doing something about Brooklyn. When finally he did get a chance to look around, he hired a couple of industrious young fellows, began adding a club here and a club there, and presto! before anyone knew it he had a smooth-functioning farm organization which today includes outright ownership of six minor clubs and agreements with a half-dozen more.

Five Clubs Won Flaps
Five of his clubs won pennants this year, three finished second, two finished third, and two fifth.

The organization goes beyond the minor leagues, however. It starts right on the sandlots. This summer about 1,600 young fellows attended the regular trouts at Ebbets field, and starting Sept. 20 at Wichita, Kas., a series of five baseball schools will be held. The troupe, with the grinning Mickey McConnell as advance man and with Scouts Ted McGraw, Andy High, Tom Greenwald and Jake Pitter in active charge, will move to Waco, Tex., thence to Phoenix, Ariz., and San Metro and Long Beach, Calif.

Fifteen lads uncovered at similar schools last year still are in the Brooklyn organization, which shows that MacPhail has material lined up for years to come through this perpetual motion system.

The Dodgers have a fine ball club right now, but it isn't entirely a young team. The Whit Wyratts and Dolph Camilli and Joe Medwick are good, but they have passed the point where they will get better.

Albosta Brought In
That's where the farms come in. Already MacPhail has brought in one potential replacement in young Ed Albosta from Durham, Montreal, the Dodgers' double "A" entry, is peppered with lads ready to move up. Chet Kehn and Ed Head, pitchers; Jack Graham, an outfielder; and Shortstop Claude Corbett, with possibly Al Sherer, pitcher, may be in the Dodger camp next spring and two other infielders, Don Ross and Roy Hughes, are being eyed by other major clubs, Durham, which contributed Albosta, has another candidate in a left-handed pitcher named Kraus. If there's anyone the Dodgers could use he is a left-handed pitcher.

Now he has the club, with the fans paying the money. With the successful operation of the farm clubs making it unnecessary in the future to buy the players, he's about ready to start showing regular profits. The guy may have wacky ideas, but when it comes to business he's dumb like a fox.

Futurity Trot
READING, Pa., Sept. 11 (AP)—Lucy Hanover, owned by the Hanover Shoe Farm, Hanover, Pa., won the $5,000 three-year-old Futurity Trot, richest event of the Reading Fair, Grand Circuit meet by taking two out of three heats with the best mile recorded in 2:07½. She was driven by Harry Thomas.

Colts Will Be Guest at Party
The Cumberland Colts, champions of the Bi-State Baseball League, will be honored with a party tonight at 8:30 o'clock at Trozzo's restaurant.

All players who participated in the National Amateur Baseball Federation tournament games in Youngstown are expected to attend. Frank Trozzo, business manager of the club announced.

Republican Club Favors Complete Ticket in State

Local Group Takes Sharp Issue with Question Raised by Haller

The Sixth District Republican club last night took sharp issue with the suggestion of W. Harry Haller, of Frederick, that the Republican party in Maryland should abandon efforts to elect a GOP governor and concentrate its efforts on electing Republican members of the legislature.

Without mentioning Haller's name, the membership of the club unanimously adopted a resolution declaring that it "favors a complete Republican ticket in the next gubernatorial election and in every other political election held in the state and pledges to support the Republican candidates for office and to oppose all others in the elections."

Deplores Expression

Then, referring directly to Haller's statement, the resolution said the club "deplores the expression of opinion recently made by a columnist in the Democratic-owned and controlled New Citizen of Frederick."

The resolution concluded by urging the people of Maryland to maintain our form of government by upholding the two-party principle as an essential part of the American political system."

Haller, writing in the Frederick New Citizen earlier in the week had said the Republican party "wastes time and energy in any attempt to elect a Republican governor next year" and that the overwhelmingly Democratic legislature is "a real issue that can be used effectively to revitalize" the GOP.

The Frederick columnist was listed as a Frederick county Republican leader in press association reports of the matter.

The resolution was drawn by a committee consisting of William J. Geppert, Lewis M. Wilson and J. Glenn Beall.

Discuss City-Wide Club

In addition to adopting the resolution, which provoked a lengthy and heated discussion, the club, holding its first meeting of the fall at the Knights of Malta hall, Prospect Square, also discussed a proposal that a city-wide Republican club be organized and maintain a downtown social club.

After considerable discussion, the club committee named to investigate the matter was directed to confer with the Republican State Central committee of the county for possible action by the latter group.

The committee includes J. Philip Roman, chairman; George Erling, James Morris, Lewis M. Wilson and Morgan C. Harris.

Florida Woman Dies In Local Hospital

Mrs. Anna E. Bales Was Sister of J. F. Eymann, This City

Funeral services were conducted in the Wolford funeral home, yesterday morning for Mrs. Anna Eymann Bales, 60, of Reddick, Fla., by the Rev. A. H. Robinson, pastor of the Central Methodist church. Mrs. Bales, who was a sister of James Frank Eymann, of this city died Tuesday morning in Allegheny hospital.

Pallbearers were Charles W. Wilson, Wylie M. Paw, Hal R. Martin, Thomas Mullany, Jesse M. Neff and Douglas Bowie.

Out of town persons attending were Mrs. Minnie Eymann and sons, Wayne and Franklin, Pittsburgh; David Eymann, Havre de Grace, Md.; Edwin Eymann, Reddick, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kearney, Harrisburg, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Mackey, Wilkesburg, Pa.; and Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Eymann, Pittsburgh.

Cramer Rites Held

Funeral services were held yesterday in Baltimore for Mrs. H. J. Cramer, past 80, who died Tuesday in Baltimore.

George W. Weston, a half brother of Mrs. Cramer, attended the funeral yesterday.

Forty-Four Conditional Sales Contracts Filed In Recorder's Office

The number of conditional sales contracts filed in the recorder's office at the court house soared again yesterday.

Forty-four of the documents were filed, the majority of them covering credit purchases of household furnishings and equipment.

Also placed on record were three deeds, thirteen right-of-way agreements with the Potomac Edison Company, three mortgages and two chattel mortgages. Deeds included: Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bender to Charles Evans, property in Cresap Park.

Louisa P. Henderson to the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland, a tract of land in Gephart Addition, above Frederick street, to be used for playground purposes.

Mr. and Mrs. Irving Rosenbaum to Mary J. Thompson, Andrew D. Laughlin and Isabelle C. Laughlin, property on Regina avenue.

Janet Walker Promoted To Supervising Nurse For Frederick County

Promotion of Miss Janet Walker, Allegheny county health nurse, to the position of supervising nurse for Frederick county was announced yesterday by Miss Sadie Gladwin, supervising nurse for this county.

Miss Walker, formerly of Cleveland, Ohio, has been stationed in Westernport for the past year. She will take over her new duties in Frederick county on October 1.

A successor for the post in Westernport will be named shortly.

Mrs. Margaret Newman Wilson, nurse, of the city health department, will leave here Monday, September 22, for Washington, D. C., to take a four months' course in public health nursing, Miss Gladwin announced.

Committee Will File Protest on Road Work Delay

Wants To Know Why Highway Projects Have Not Been Pushed

The Good Roads committee of the chamber of commerce yesterday decided to protest strongly the failure of the Maryland State Roads Commission to push highway projects in Western Maryland as promised earlier in the summer.

The committee, of which Miles G. Thompson is chairman, is anxious to know specifically the status of proposed work on U. S. Route 40 between Cumberland and Frostburg and on U. S. Route 220 between Rawlins and McCoolie.

Bid Is Rejected

Early in July, the committee recalled, the roads commission stated definitely that work would get underway "this summer" on the admittedly badly needed Route 40 relocation. Nothing has yet been done, the committee declared, proposing to find out why by protests to the roads commission and other state groups.

Bids on the Route 220 work which is to consist of widening of the highway by the addition of a shoulder, were sought by the commission early in the summer, but the one bid received was rejected as too high. The committee was informed by the commission that the project would be immediately re-advised and new bids sought, but nothing has come of that promise either, it was said.

The chamber group took particular note of a recent statement by Governor O'Connor expressing "extreme satisfaction" with the "full-scale operations" of the state roads commission in "efforts to improve Maryland's roads to a point where they equal in every way the finest of any state."

Many Projects Listed

The governor's statement listed more than a score of highway projects in the state costing $5,000,000, the committee pointed out, but there was no mention of any work in Allegheny and Garrett counties. The only work listed in Western Maryland is resurfacing of a short stretch between Hagerstown and Frederick.

Only bright spot in the picture is the Maryland commission's action in approving plans for a new bridge across the Potomac river between McCoolie and Keyser, provided the West Virginia roads body agree to meet half the costs. The proposed span, under present plans, is also to eliminate the Western Maryland railway grade crossing.

Forty Draftees Leave Today

21-Year-old Men Are Included in Group To Be Inducted

Cumberland's population will be forty less today with the departure of that number of draftees to the Army induction station this morning at 8 o'clock by bus.

Twenty-three of the men are from Local Board No. 2 while seventeen are from Local Board No. 1. About one fourth of the men are 21-year-old draftees.

The group under Board 2 includes: Robert L. Elbin, Robert A. Shobe, Paul W. King, Roy I. Breighner, Albert T. Davis, Paul W. Mackert, Marshall M. Reger, James K. Stevens, George E. Ziegler, Holmes A. Atkinson, K. Roy Hoffman, Allen M. Smith, Alfred R. Barnett, Charles W. Lashorn, Thomas E. Danner, Leslie C. Welsh, Ralph H. Bett, Melvin A. Hamilton, Robert L. Doak, Herman R. Shank, William R. Wilson, Frank R. McFarland and Donald L. Lester.

The contingent of Board 1 includes: Frank M. House, Homer R. Snider, Ward M. Yeider, William C. Graham, Jonas E. Self, Bruce G. Swan, Richard S. Davis, Raymond B. Davis, Peter A. Peener, John B. Dowdle, Roy A. McDonald, Fred Deneer, Raymond W. Noxon, Clarence A. Meyers and Ernest O. Heerle. Charles F. Carder, a transfer of Board 1, will be inducted from Dickinson, N. D.

QUEEN OF THE WHITE HOUSE—The figure of Dolly Madison is among the twenty-five miniature representations of twenty-five "First Ladies of the Land," now on exhibit at the Cumberland Free Public Library. The wife of President James Madison was regarded by many as queen of the "First Ladies" and looked the part in her mostly costly silks, velvets and jewels. The blue material in Dolly's gown is part of a dress worn by Elizabeth Ridgely Hollingsworth at a coming-out party at Berkeley Springs, W. Va., in 1845. The exhibit which will be open to the public here until September 20 is the work of Miss Ethel McLean, of Middleport, N. Y. The figurines, valued at $1,500, won first prize in the National Doll Show.

Guard Companies Will Drill Each Wednesday Night

Permission Is Sought for Organization of Engineers Unit Here

Cumberland's two companies of the Maryland State Guard will drill regularly each Wednesday night between 7:30 and 9:30 o'clock, it was announced yesterday.

Expressing satisfaction with the progress made at Wednesday night's drill, Captains Thomas P. Conlon and Richard P. Shireman also announced that permission has been sought from state headquarters for the organization of a third company—an engineers' unit—here.

Served on Reserve List

More than a score of men are on the reserve list, the officers said, expressing the belief that it would not be difficult to recruit fifty additional men to fill the ranks of the new company.

Wednesday night was chosen for the regular drills, it was indicated, because it is the most convenient for all concerned and because it was the traditional drill night of Company G of the National Guard.

Conlon and Shireman emphasized that members of the Guard will be expected to be present at the Wednesday night drills without further notice, unless officially excused. They added, however, that attendance was good at this week's session, with an average of only five absent in each company.

The commissioned officers appeared for the first time here in their uniforms and equipment are still lacking for the enlisted men. Hope was expressed that both companies may be completely outfitted in the near future, with indications that they may make their first public appearance in either the Halloween or Armistice day parades.

To Wear Lapel Insignia

Members of the units have been authorized to attach tags to their automobiles bearing the words "Maryland State Guard," in black letters on a yellow background and also wear a lapel insignia attesting to their membership. The buttons bear the insignia of the Twenty-ninth division, black and gold instead of blue and gray, with the Calvert cross superimposed.

Three of the officers returned this week from College Park, where they took a "refresher course." They were Captains Conlon and Shireman and Lieut. David H. Murrie.

Cumberland Doctors Appointed to Medical Advisory Boards Here

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 11 (AP)—Governor O'Connor appointed six additional physicians today to medical advisory boards established under the selective service act.

The appointees included: Dr. Charles E. Kneider, Cumberland, dermatologist and syphilologist, and Dr. Frank U. Davis, Cumberland, to the medical board at Memorial hospital, Cumberland.

"First Ladies" Exhibit at Library Reveals Many Interesting Facts

Figurines Valued at $1,500; Will Be Displayed Here until Sept. 20

Did you know—that it is to Helen Taft that the people of the United States must give thanks for the cherry trees in Washington.

That is what Martha Washington's custom to name plants for her friends and relatives.

That Rachel Jackson was buried in the gown she was to wear at her husband's inauguration.

That Caroline Harrison beautified the White House with her painting. That Sarah Polk was her husband's private secretary and burned the night oil reading and correcting her husband's manuscripts.

That Jane Pierce was in mourning when she became the First Lady as her thirteen-year-old son was killed in a train accident shortly after election.

That Ida S. McKinley predicted that her husband would be killed after he was elected president. That Julia Gardiner Taylor smoked a corn cob pipe and felt herself unequal to the social exactions of a White House hostess.

And that Lou Henry Hoover worked, played and camped with the Girl Scouts and that neither Mr. and Mrs. Hoover is "high hat."

These and many other interesting facts are revealed in the $1,500 exhibit at the Cumberland Free Public Library, Washington street, of a fine collection of miniature representations of twenty-five "First Ladies of the Land," including with only a few omissions the entire list from Martha Washington to Eleanor Roosevelt.

The "biggest little women in the United States" will be on display until Saturday, September 20, and the public is invited to visit the exhibit on the second floor.

The figures of plastic material and dressed in reproductions of original costumes, are the work of Miss Ethel McLean, of Middleport, N. Y. The period dresses are beautiful and in themselves constitute a lesson in the history of fashion.

Won at National Show

According to Miss Mary Walsh, librarian, this exhibit has been shown in other libraries and museums, and is in great demand for store engagements. The figurines won first prize at the National Doll Show.

Youth Suffers Fractured Left Leg in Collision Between Truck and Bike

Wilbert Brant, Jr., 15, of 133 Mary street, was admitted to Memorial hospital yesterday suffering with a compound fracture of the left leg, abrasions of the right elbow and right side, and lacerations of the back of his head.

The youth was injured when he turned into Oldtown road from Pennsylvania avenue while riding a bicycle and was struck by a pickup truck driven by Leroy Saville of 402 Grand avenue, hospital attaches said. Saville took the boy to the hospital in his truck. Brant is reported in a "good" condition.

LaVale Landmark Being Razed for New Truck Firm

Dean and Parrish Take Over Old Distillery Property on Highway

Landmarks that have been familiar to travelers on the National highway west of Cumberland for approximately half a century are being razed and remodeled to make way for a parking lot, repair shop and display room to be opened about October 1 by Dean and Parrish, formerly of Charlottesville, W. Va., who will serve this territory as dealers for International trucks, farming machinery and tractors.

The new firm has obtained a five-year lease on the old James C. Clark Braddock Distillery warehouse property, adjacent to the LaVale Volunteer Fire Company station, from the Feldstein Iron and Metal Company, which has used the buildings for storing junk.

One of the buildings, three stories high, constructed of frame and covered with sheet metal, is now being torn down and in its place will be a parking lot. This structure, used as a warehouse by the distillery in the days before the prohibition era, was erected about sixty years ago.

Plans Large Display Room

A huge concrete structure, 120 feet long, seventy-five feet wide and four stories in height, which also served as a warehouse in the "good old days," is being remodeled into a display room and general garage. Racks upon which barrels of whiskey were used are being removed from the first floor only, while the others on the three stories above will be left intact until additional space is needed. This structure was built about thirty-five years ago.

Kester B. Dean, senior member of the firm, yesterday said that the lower floor of the building will contain five large plate glass windows facing the national highway and that the interior will have a concrete floor. Amplest walks will grace the front of the building.

The big change in construction material is very noticeable in the remodeling of the concrete building, the interior being interwoven from bottom to top with wooden beams which served as jacks for the whiskey barrels. An oddity is the fact that six by four, thirty-six feet long, run the entire height of the building.

Grant Is Contractor

C. S. Grant, of Cresaptown, who is general contractor, remarked yesterday that this type of beam is rare in these parts nowadays due to the fact that large buildings of this type are constructed with steel. To clear the first floor it was necessary to saw off these beams at the fourteen foot ceiling mark and use five steel beams in their place. Grant stated that it was necessary to cut 360 of the lengthy main beams which run from the floor to roof. The building also contains hundreds of four by four southern yellow pine beams each of which is thirty feet in length. Fourteen men are employed on the job.

The one-story building on the property, formerly used as a gauging room by the distillery, will become a storage room for the new firm. In recent years this building was used as a warehouse by the Tri-State Roofing Company.

Kester B. Dean and his son-in-law, Edward B. Parrish, former traveling auditor for the West Virginia State Tax Department, have moved here to prepare for the opening of their business headquarters. Both are making their home at 505 Beall street. Dean formerly was associated in the same kind of business with Omer Given, better known throughout this section at West Virginia trapshooting champion, at Charleston.

Local Men Employed

Two Cumberland men, R. Edward Valentine and R. E. "Dick" Light, parts manager and motor truck salesman, respectively, with the former local international dealer here, will be employed by the new firm.

Four More Suits Filed Against Policyholders Of Insurance Company

Four more suits against policyholders of the defunct Keystone Indemnity Exchange were filed in circuit court yesterday on behalf of Matthew H. Taggart, insurance commissioner of Pennsylvania and liquidator of the firm.

Defendants in the suits, claims of which aggregate about $750, are M. J. Burns, Arthur J. Weber, George M. Little and Amelia M. Jackson jointly and Franklin H. Ankeney and Grace C. Ankeney, distributors of the estate of F. C. Ankeney.

The suits, which bring the total docketed in circuit court here to thirteen, were filed by W. Earle Cobey, of Cumberland, and Ralph P. Dunn, of Washington, attorneys.

Celanese Worker Suffers Severe Hand Injury

James Ruble, 17, of Wiley Ford, W. Va., was treated yesterday at Memorial hospital for a severe laceration of his right hand suffered while at work at the Celanese plant.

Several large arteries and blood vessels were severed when a knife he was using slipped. After first aid at the plant he was brought to the hospital for additional treatment. He lost a lot of blood, hospital attaches said.

B. & O. Worker Suffers Injured Toe when Hit By Steel Weight

Harold Devore, 26, of 456 Williams street, suffered an injury to the great toe of his left foot yesterday when steel weight fell on it yesterday while he was working at the B. & O. shops.

An X-ray will be taken to determine the extent of injury. He received treatment at Allegheny hospital.

ASSUMES WPA POST—Mrs. Elizabeth D. Pitcher, of the Washington and Lee apartments, this city has assumed the duties of Allegheny county WPA recreation supervisor. She succeeds Mrs. Elizabeth Cooper, Lonaconing, who resigned. Mrs. Pitcher assumed her duties Wednesday and has offices in the Union street school building. She plans to organize preschool groups throughout the county in the near future.

Quick action on the part of the proprietor of a local garage prevented what might have been a serious fire yesterday.

The attendant was filling the gasoline tank of a car when a bystander flipped a lighted cigar.

Things happened with a bang as the fumes from the intake pipe caught fire.

Seizing a fire extinguisher the proprietor directed the contents to the intake pipe and quickly extinguished the flame, and the day was saved, more or less.

Obvious Deduction—Flipping lighted cigar stubs around a gasoline station is not exactly a safety measure.

There has been such a fine response on the part of the citizens of Cumberland since the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce recently invited letters from residents who would like to see a campaign started to eliminate, to some extent at least, the smoke nuisance in the city that Chatter has decided from time to time to publish excerpts from these missives.

Persons who favor elimination of the smoke nuisance and who want to express their opinions on the subject can do so by writing to Chatter or the chamber of commerce. All letters must be signed with names and addresses.

A North Chase street resident writes:

"By all means do something about the trains nuisance. You will be doing a very great service."

From a Polk street resident the chamber of commerce received this interesting communication:

"The address of Mr. James C. Shriver and also of Mr. James Alfred Alvret have inspired me to put into writing what I have been thinking for some time, that the smoke and dirt in Cumberland from the railroads should be eliminated to some extent."

It seems to me that action could be taken in regard to this nuisance by the worthy body of men both in the chamber of commerce and the city council.

To put my complaint in detail of how bad the smoke and dirt situation is in all our neighborhoods would be too lengthy. So, all we are asking is to please do something about this unnecessary condition."

In response to your request for our opinion of the smoke situation in our city I am writing you the facts of the smoke problem."

"It is so bad some evenings we can't sit on our front porch. Also it disturbs us from sleep. We can work from 6 in the morning until 6 in the evening and we still couldn't keep the house clean. It isn't so healthy to awaken every morning with your nostrils full of black dirt. We also have to wait until the last minute to set the table for a meal."

"The smoke makes it almost impossible to have flowers or shrubs to beautify our home. We would be very thankful and glad if something could be done."

From a woman resident on Louisiana avenue, the chamber received an interesting letter.

"Living as I do in the 'smoke and cinder belt' on Louisiana avenue," she stated, "I am watching with interest your efforts to have these nuisances modified."

"Due to the prevailing winds we get an unusual amount of smoke from over the town, from the railroads, the reclamation plant, and the Memorial hospital contributes its share. Smoke frequently pours from its chimney as thick and black as from a freshly fired Mallet engine."

"As you know this is a section of comparatively good homes and it seems a shame that the

VanZandt Invited To Speak at VFW Home Dedication

Three Times National Commander Sought for Event Here October 25

A three times commander-in-chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States has been invited to be the principal speaker at the formal opening ceremonies and celebration at the new home of Henry Hart Post No. 1411, V.F.W., Union street, it was announced yesterday by William L. McKenzie, chairman of the committee on arrangements.

Rep. James E. VanZandt, of Altoona, Pa., representing the twenty-third Pennsylvania Congressional district, who enlisted in the United States Navy when he was seventeen years old, and served as national commander of the V.F.W. for three successive terms, has been invited to deliver the principal address.

VanZandt made twelve round trips across the Atlantic during the World War. He held the position of special representative of the passenger traffic department of the Pennsylvania railroad when elected to Congress and is recognized as an excellent orator.

The opening celebration at the home, now being completed by James C. Powell, local contractor, is scheduled for Saturday, October 25.

BANKS AND WELFARE BOARD TO OBSERVE "DEFENDERS' DAY"

All banks in Cumberland and the office of the Allegheny County Welfare Board, Washington street, will be closed today in observance of Defenders' Day, a legal holiday in Maryland.

"Defenders' Day" is observed in commemoration of the successful resistance of British invasion of Baltimore in 1814, when General Ross and Admiral Cockburn landed a large force on North Point at the mouth of the Patuxent. After being defeated the British then opened the unsuccessful bombardment of Fort M'Henry the next day, which inspired the writing of "The Star Spangled Banner," by Francis Scott Key.

The Allegheny county commissioners will meet as usual this morning at the court house and business will be transacted at the city hall, the library and Cumberland post office.

Safety Measure Is Urged for Children

Survey of Signals and Markers Will Safeguard School Children

A survey of traffic signals and markers by city, county and school police authorities was urged today by the Western Maryland Motor Club in order that school children will be adequately safeguarded while on their way to and from classes.

Children returning to school this year require more than usual protection said F. Harry Rockwell, president of the club. A survey should determine that all signs are properly placed, worn signs have been repainted, traffic signals operate properly, crosswalk markings have been renewed, and no-parking signs in front of schools and at corners near schools are properly erected. He continued:

"Parking alongside school playgrounds and buildings constitutes a serious hazard, and many communities restrict such parking, as well as the stopping or parking of cars and trucks too close to corners where they obstruct the view of safety patrol members and children desiring to cross."

"Many communities are also repainting crosswalk markings wider so as to make them more visible to approaching motorists. This is especially important if the crosswalk is at a mid-block point, or on a rural road."

Mr. Rockwell suggested that officials in charge of school bus transportation check bus condition, including the legibility of signs on buses, so that signs indicating where school buses stop are legible and properly placed. He added:

"Parents of children entering school for the first time, should seek the help of the teacher, school safety patrol supervisor and safety patrol captain in determining the safest route to school, based on location of school safety patrol members, police traffic signals and stop signs."
